NEWS BRIEFS

Israeli Leader Arrives In Philly

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Levi Eshkol, prime minister of Israel arrived here Sunday to begin a 12-day official visit to the United States at the invitation of President Johnson.

Eshkol, accompanied by his wife, Miriam, and members of his staff, was greeted at the airport by Mayor James H. J. Tate, Benjamin Avon, counsul of Israel in Philadelphia, and others.

Jacket Saves Boy On River

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — An 11-year-old boy, kept afloat by a life jacket for 12 hours, was plucked from the chilly Delaware River by a helicopter Sunday. A boating accident had cast him adrift.

The boy's father, Arthur Memilin, 42, Wilmington, drowned.

A passenger, Sanford Hunt, 33, Wilmington, was rescued three hours after McMilin's 18-foot boat cracked up on a jetty Saturday night near Pea Patch Island.

Shastri Favored As India's Chief

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — India's ruling Congress party gave its president on Sunday the extraordinary power to advise it who should succeed the late Prime Minister Nehru. The successor will be named on Tuesday, and the favorite appeared to be Lal Bahadur Sahstri.

The party's high command, determined to avoid open political warfare, refused to settle the issue itself or to go to the membership.

It asked the party president, Kumaraswami Kamaraj, to "tender his advice" on who should be elected.

Bobby Kennedy Halts VP Push

NEW YORK (AP)—U.S. Atty Gen. Robert F. Kennedy made it emphatic Sunday: He doesn't want anybody to push him for the Democratic vice presidential nomination.

The late President's brother disavowed slates of candidates entered in his behalf in two New York City districts in Tuesday's primary.

The attorney general, expressing support of President Johnson, said delegates to the Democratic National Convention opening Aug. 24 in Atlantic City, N. J., should await the advice of Johnson before choosing a running mate.

Southeast Asia Huddle Begins

HONOLULU (AP)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk led the first wave of top level U. S. officials into Honolulu Sunday for a closed-door conference which could produce new approaches to rolling back Communist advances in Southeast Asia.

The two-day meeting was given a tone of urgency by White House announcements that President Johnson had ordered a full review of U. S. policies concerning all of Southeast Asia.

Accompanying Rusk was Henry Cabot Lodge, the U. S. ambassador to South Viet Nam.

First Graduates In Birmingham

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—Two girls and a boy Sunday became the first Negroes to graduate from desegregated high schools in this steel city.

Police took extra precautions to prevent possible disorders but there were no incidents.

The girls received diplomas from West End High School. The boy graduated from Ramsay High.

All three walked into their school's auditorium in alphabetical order with their classmates. The families of all attended. Seating arrangements in the auditorium were not segregated.

Bolivia Re-Elects Paz Estenssoro

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP)—President Victor Paz Estenssoro won a second successive four year term Sunday in an election boycotted by the opposition.

The 56-year-old Paz Estenssoro celebrated his victory with a speech to supporters as polling stations began the formality of counting the votes.

Negroes Riot In N Y Subway

NEW YORK (AP)—Two separate bands of Negroes terrorized Brooklyn subway trains early Sunday, smashing windows and lights and beating and robbing white passengers. Sunday night, a band of five knifed a white youth on a train in lower Manhattan.

In one of the explosive outbursts in Brooklyn, a gang of about 20 or more young Negroes, many reeking of alcohol, poured from the train into the streets, breaking store windows and looting one. Irate white residents reacted with anger, and a street clash was narrowly averted.

Another gang of four, led by a youth carrying a meat cleaver, invaded a motorman's cab and threatened to kill him. They also threatened the 25 passengers aboard the train, before they were arrested and charged with disorderly conduct.

Attack White Youth

Sunday night, five Negro teenagers attacked a white youth on a train in lower Manhattan, beating him and knifing him in the shoulder.

The victim, Michael Sadev, 17, said the five demanded that he turn on his pocket radio and give them money, then attacked before he could comply. He was taken to a hospital where his condition was described as not serious.

Three Negro youths were arrested and charged with juvenile delinquency, and two others were seized for questioning.

Detective Raymond Sheerin said 30 to 40 white persons poured out of their homes and a neighborhood bar after the youths broke four store windows and burglarized one of the places.

Police held the crowd back after arresting 12 of the Negroes on charges ranging from rioting to robbery. Sheerin said eight to 15 of their cohorts got away.

Teacher Murdered

The subway violence followed by one day the rape-murder of a white school teacher, Charlotte Lipsik, 38, in another Brooklyn neighborhood, Crown Heights. There a group of Hasidic Jews have formed a private radio-car police patrol to try to end recent nighttime terrorism.

The train riot occurred in the Sheepshead Bay - Bensonhurst sections shortly after 2 a.m. According to the wife of one man who was beaten, it illustrated once more the apparent apathy of New Yorkers to come to one another's aid.

No One Helped

While Nicholas Philippides, 54, was being pummeled and stomped upon, his fellow passengers made no attempt to interfere, his wife, Helen, 39, told a newsman.

"Nobody got up to help him," she said. "They just watched."

Mrs. Philippides wasn't there but she said her husband, a Brooklyn restaurant owner, told her what happened.

"They pulled his one pant leg off and took his wallet with $97 and broke his glasses," she said. "He tried to get out when the train doors opened but they dragged him back in and started beating him again.

Man Stomped

"Somehow he landed on the station platform and again they jumped him. They stomped on him. He was bleeding, his head was bashed in, his lip and cheek were cut. Finally the conductor came and helped him up."

Also manhandled were Howard Weiner, 16, a freshman at Staten Island Community College, and another Brooklyn resident, Harvey Vine, 26.

All three were treated for cuts and bruises at hospitals, but only Weiner was admitted. A doctor said he was in fair condition with a cerebral concussion and head cuts.

Police said Weiner had been hit in the face with a bottle. His family said he lost $3 and a watch.

The rioters smashed windows and light bulbs, darkening the first car completely, and tore out seats, Sheerin said. One 17-year-old pushed his foot through a window and cut his leg so badly he had to be hospitalized.

Civil Rights Showdown Vote Near

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate starts its 13th week of debate on the civil rights bill Monday with an air of expectancy that a showdown vote is on the horizon.

June 10, maybe, says Majority Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana.

The third week in June, says Minority Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois. At the same time he suggests the possibility that some members might have to charter planes for quick returns to Washington from long-scheduled commencement speeches.

The hopes of the administration for success in passing the bill ride on a package of amendments pushed by Dirksen.

"You can claim a large measure of the credit, when the bill passes," Humphrey told Dirksen in a joint radio broadcast taped for release Sunday.

Southerners who have fought the bill through 66 days of debate will attempt to amend the substitute package on the floor, Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel, R-Calif., the minority whip, predicted in another broadcast.

The big test will come when the majority tries for a vote on cloture, choking off debate. If this is voted, each senator will be allowed one hour for a final word.

Over the weekend, two more senators joined those who have told The Associated Press they are prepared to vote for cloture. This raised to 58 the total of those so listed.

A two-thirds majority of those voting—67 of all 100 members vote — is needed to limit debate. Twenty-six are listed as firmly opposed to cloture.

Good Morning!

Pygmies Defeat Congo Army Unit

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (AP)—Pygmy-like warriors with spears, backed up by uniformed rebels with machine guns and mortars, have defeated two companies of Congolese commandos in an ambush in eastern Congo.

Fears spread of a rebel attack on the key provincial city of Bukavu.

Radio messages reaching Leopoldville Sunday from the province of Kivu said 60 Congolese soldiers including the field commander, a Maj. Vangu, were missing. Since the rebel attacks started early in May, an estimated 400 Congolese soldiers have been killed, wounded or are missing in Kivu.

The rebels are led by pro-Communists.

About 200 miles to the south, Congolese soldiers regained control of the North Katanga provincial capital of Albertville after pro-Communist rebels had held it for three days.

Residents there told newsmen the rebel seizure was bloodless and that violence broke out only when Congolese troops and police countered. The residents said about 100 persons are believed to have been killed by the army in reprisals for the rebel takeover.

Three European women were reported raped.

The North Katanga Province president, Jason Sendwe, said he had been beaten by the rebels for being "too Western and pro-American."

During the violence the provincial finance minister, Augustin Lukalonga, and his 4-year-old daughter were shot to death. Sendwe said his Cabinet chief, known to be a rebel leader, also was killed and that Health Minister Max Yuma fled with the rebels to the surrounding hills.

Birth Control Doctor Given Communion

LONDON (AP)—The woman doctor who is defying the Roman Catholic Church by continuing to run a birth control clinic was given communion at Westminster Cathedral on Sunday.

But the Archbishop of Westminster issued a statement saying that about 200 people had received communion at the same time and the priest at the altar had not recognized her. The doctor insisted that he had.

Dr. Anne Biezanek, 36, mother of seven, had written Dr. John Heenan, Archbishop of Westminster and head of the Roman Catholic Church in this country, that she would attend one Low Mass Sunday.

She took the action after being publicly refused communion at her own parish church in Wallasey, Cheshire. Although she has presented herself regularly at the altar rail each Sunday for the past six months, the local priest has passed her by.

A large crowd watched her arrive at the cathedral with Dr. Iris Tempowski, a friend. Father Victor Guazzelli administered the sacrament to both women.

"The priest was standing at the door and he saw me talking to reporters and knew who I was. He was also at the altar and he could have refused to allow me the sacrament. I think it is a sign that Archbishop Heenan knew that is so. He has given Catholics their freedom," Dr. Biezanek said.

"Whatever happens my clinic will stay open," she said. "I believe I am doing God's work in helping Catholics to limit the size of their families."

Two weeks ago the Roman Catholic hierarchy, through Dr. Heenan, condemned "pagan solutions' to world population problems and reaffirmed church teaching against contraception.

British 'Rolling Stones' Follow Beatles To U.S.A.

LONDON (AP)—Americans—brace yourselves.

In the tracks of the Beatles, a second wave of sheepdog-looking, angry - acting, guitar-playing Britons is on the way.

They are heavily booked—including two performances at Carnegie Hall.

Wilder, Dirtier

Of the Rolling Stones, one detractor has said: "They are dirtier, wilder, freakier and more disheveled than the Beatles and in some places they're more popular than the Beatles."

To this Eric Easton, manager of the Rolling Stones, retorts: "The Rolling Stones are not dirty. It's true that they appear to conform to a certain image. They are independent and they dress as they please, but they're not dirty."

This was backed up recently by a photograph of one of the Rolling Stones—Mick Jagger—having his long shaggy hair washed.

In addition to Jagger, 19, the Rolling Stones are:

Britain Jones, 19, lead guitar and vocalist.

Charlie Watts, 21, drums.

Keith Richard, 19, rhythm guitar.

Bill Wyman, 21, bass guitar and vocalist.

Jagger is the lead singer of the Rolling Stones.

Several of the Rolling Stones play harmonicas, nearly all of them sing. Every one of them talks.

Not Hungry

Says Mick Jagger: "I hate to get up in the morning. I'm not overfond of being hungry either."

On the subject of his personal ambitions Mick says: "We're going to make a film soon. That should provide me with an opportunity to see if I can act. I'd like to act, but I'd also like to write. Novels as well as songs."

From Keith Richard: "People think we're wild and unruly. But it isn't true. I would say that the most important thing about us is that we are our own best friends."

Civil War Reader

On hobbies, Charlie Watts says: "If I was a millionaire I'd buy vintage cars just to look at them. To relax, I like to read about the American Civil War. I have eight expensive books on the subject."

More than the others, perhaps, Britain Jones likes clothes.

He put his philosophy this way: "It depends on what I feel like really. Sometimes I'll wear very flamboyant clothes like this frilly shirt. Other times I'll wear very casual stuff. I spent a lot of my free time buying stuff."

Then he adds: "There's really not much else to do."

The Married Man

Says Bill Wyman: "I really hate new clothes. I feel uncomfortable in them. I only buy them when I have to."

Bill is the married man in the group.

British show business people think the Rolling Stones have a great future. For instance, their first long-playing record sold 100,000 copies on the first day.

"They've knocked off the Beatles in the long - playing charts," says their manager.

Holiday Road Deaths Set A Record

By The Associated Press

Memorial Day weekend traffic deaths set a new record Sunday night for a three-day observance of the holiday.

The toll zoomed to 405 for the the tabulation period that began at 6 p.m. local time Thursday and ended at midnight Sunday.

The previous mark, established in 1958, was 371.

But the total still was short of the National Safety Council's advance estimates that motor vehicle accidents might cost between 410 and 490 lives during the weekend.

Traffic	405
Boating	16
Drowning	39
Total	460

Rain and cool weather in some northern areas of the nation may have held down the exodus to outdoor resorts on the first holiday of the summer season.

The Associated Press made a survey of a non-holiday weekend of the same time span — from 6 p.m. Thursday, May 14 to midnight Sunday, May 17. The survey showed 418 deaths in motor vehicle accidents.

LBJ Misses Jagged Glass At 70 M.P.H.

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson, at the wheel of his white sedan, narrowly avoided running over a broken bottle Sunday while he was driving to church at 70 miles an hour.

The President was leading a four-car caravan through a light drizzle when he rolled safely past the jagged glass. The Secret Service car second behind him struck the bottle and tore a large hole in a front tire.

The driver brought the sedan to a halt without incident while the rest of the cars went on.

Rocky, Barry Run Abreast In Calif.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Apparently running nearly abreast, Sen. Barry Goldwater and Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller bring their battle for California's 86 Republican presidential nomination votes to a blazing finish Monday.

As the long, wearying weeks of campaigning drew near a close, both candidates expressed confidence in the outcome.

Goldwater, who started out as the favorite in the polls, was winding up on the low end. But he said he felt the tide had turned in his favor in the final few days.

Rocky Cocky

Rockefeller, who had been the underdog until he won the May 15 Oregon GOP presidential primary, felt so good about his prospects that he was predicting how many convention votes he would have on the first ballot toward the 655 needed for the nomination. He said he'd have 400 if he won in California.

Election officials estimated that from 60 to 70 per cent of the state's 2,895,448 registered Republicans might vote. A relatively light vote would be expected to benefit Goldwater, who had the support of GOP conservatives, likely to turn out heavily.

Rockefeller seemed likely to be favored if the supporters of other liberal potential candidates, such as Henry Cabot Lodge, came out in substantial numbers to back the governor in a stop-Goldwater movement.

Salinger - Cranston

Overshadowed nationally by the Republican presidential battle, a contest between Pierre Salinger, former White House press secretary, and State Controller Alan Cranston for the Democratic senatorial nomination aroused heated state interest. Nine other candidates are on the ballot for the nomination for the seat being vacated by ailing Sen. Clair Engle.

On the Republican side, former actor George Murphy competed with businessman Lee M. Kaiser and Fred Hall, former governor of Kansas, for that party's nomination.

TV Debate

State managers for the Arizona senator and the New York governor kept the pot boiling with a scheduled national television clash. This pitted Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel, R-Calif., head of the Rockefeller slate, against former Sen. William F. Knowland, top man on the Goldwater delegate list.

Rockefeller, whose wife gave birth to a boy Saturday, arranged to fly back to California for a 12-hour tour that will take him to rallies at 14 airports across the state Monday.

Pathet Lao Quit Laotian Coalition

TOKYO (AP) — Peking Radio said Monday the pro-Communist Pathet Lao has decided to withdraw all its government personnel from the Laotian capital of Vientiane and no longer recognizes Prince Souvanna Phouma as premier.

This could mean the collapse of the coalition regime of pro-Communists, neutralists and rightists, set up in 1962 to take Laos out of the cold war. But there was no mention that the Pathet Lao officials were resigning their jobs.

A New China News Agency broadcast, quoting the Pathet Lao radio, said Pathet Lao leader Prince Soupanouvong demanded the safe return of Pathet Lao officials from the rightist-controlled administrative capital.

Souphanouvong messaged Souvanna Saturday that Pathet Lao "secretaries of state and guards can no longer carry out their functions (in Vientiane) and their lives are now at stake," Peking Radio said.

"Prince Souvanna Phouma is now only a prisoner held by the United States and their lackeys," the Pathet Lao radio was quoted as saying. "Therefore, he no longer holds the title of premier of the legitimate National Union Government (coalition)."

U. S. Plan To Attack In Viet Nam Aired

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Melvin R. Laird, R-Wis., said Sunday that the administration is preparing plans for a strike into communist North Viet Nam but he stopped short of saying it will use them.

In response to a question on a recorded interview, Radio Press International's "From the People," Laird said: "The administration's position is to move north and we are now preparing to move north. This is a preparation that has been going on for several months and we in the Defense Appropriations Committee in the House are supporting the necessary preparations so that our forces will be in a position to have this free choice available to them in the future.'

A reporter then asked. "The administration, you say, plans to move into North Viet Nam?" and Laird replied: The administration plans to prepare to move into North Viet Nam and that's the important part of my statement. We feel that we should be prepared to move into North Viet Nam. I have felt this for some time and I am happy to say that the administration takes the same position."

Asked whether such a move might involve guerrilla tactics or "a broad open offensive into the north," Laird said: "Well, I am privileged to certain information which I don't believe should be discussed publicly. I would hope that these preparations would include many alternatives."

Barry Asks GOP Unity Meeting

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Sen. Barry Goldwater said Sunday that if he wins the Republican presidential nomination he will call party leaders — including Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller—to a "summit meeting" to map campaign strategy.

In a statement released by his Los Angeles headquarters, Goldwater said such a session "would demonstrate to all Republicans, all Americans, a determination of the GOP to present a comprehensive program for progress and freedom."

Goldwater said those he would call to a post-convention conference include former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, Senate Minority Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, House GOP Leader Charles A. Halleck of Indiana, Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania, Gov. George Romney of Michigan and Rockefeller.

The senator said "a united Republican party" could beat President Johnson next November.

"The opposition is strong, but it can be beaten if all Republicans join together in a united front against the Democrats," he said.

Threat To Nikita Reported In Sweden

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP)—The newspaper Expressen said Sunday that an underground Fascist organization with headquarters here threatens to try to kill Soviet Premier Khrushchev when he visits Sweden in June.

Expressen is Scandinavia's largest circulation daily.

Its report concerned an organization which here goes under the name of Swedish-Croatian Association, but is generally known as Ustase — a Yugoslav Quisling party during the war accused of even worse terror than the Nazis.

The paper based its reports on a threat voiced during the visit of two Soviet cosmonauts here, on a recent Fascist demonstration in Stockholm streets and on statements by a former Yugoslav ambassador to Sweden. Swedish security police were said to be keeping careful watch on the organization, which is reported stronger in Sweden than anywhere else, with an estimated 1,220 members.

In March, when Soviet cosmonauts Yuri A. Gagarin and Pavel R. Popovich visited Sweden, an Ustase spokesman was reported to have called Expressen in connection with an anonymous bomb threat against the cosmonauts in Malmo.

"Khrushchev will die in Sweden. We are strong here in Malmo," the man said, according to the paper. Khrushchev is scheduled to arrive here Jun 22.

Satellite Corp. Stock Goes To Public Tuesday

WASHINGTON (AP) — Investors are lined up with checkbooks at the ready for Tuesday's offering off a high-flying speculation that offers only one guarantee: You won't get rich quick.

The venture is Communications Satellite Corp., called COMSAT. Its initial stock offering of 10 million shares at $20 a share has churned up a market furore.

Legally, it is a private corporation. It is government-blessed and government-regulated, but definitely not government-guaranteed.

Congress Authority

It has authority from Congress to ring the earth with satellites from which phone calls, spacegrams, television and computer data can be bounced from any continent to any other continent and to charge for the service and make money if it can.

Financially, it will be a $200-million enterprise. Half its stock, five million shares, was allotted last Tuesday to 163 firms in the communications industry. American Telephone & Telegraph Co. bought the biggest portion, 2.9 million shares costing $58 million. AT&T tried for $85 million worth, but was trimmed down.

$20 A Share

The public gets its chance, at $20 a share, on Tuesday when COMSAT's stock registration is scheduled to become effective at the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Most of the more than 1,200 underwriting firms and securities dealers distributing the shares expect the demand to exceed their supply, despite COMSAT's frank warning to investors that: "The corporation will not have significant operating revenue until the system is in full operation (presumably, in 1967). The corporation may operate at a loss for several years after commencement of full operation.

"No dividends will be paid on the common stock for an indeterminate period."

Physicaly, the company headquarters looks more like an echo of the past than the wave of the future. COMSAT has leased a sumptuous and famed old Washington mansion, Tregaron, set on a hilltop in the middle of 20 overgrown acres of costly in-town real estate.

State News Roundup

Blatt Confident Of Victory

MEADVILLE, Pa. (AP)—Expressing confidence she has won the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate, Genevieve Blatt said Saturday she believes she will defeat incumbent Hugh Scott more easily in November.

"I feel confident I have won (the primary)," the state secretary of internal affairs told a news conference.

However, Miss Blatt did say she she would like to see the election between her and State Supreme Court Justice Michael A. Musmanno officially settled.

Referring to a report that who ever wins will step aside for a compromise candidate in November, she said, "If I win, I win."

Earlier Miss Blatt spoke at a Memorial Day service at the Northwestern Pennsylvania Maple Festival and rode in a parade.

FBI Checking Ballot Frauds

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The FBI is investigating complaints of alleged vote frauds in the Wilkes-Barre and Scranton areas in the April 28 primary.

The Philadelphia office of the FBI started the inquiry five days ago at the justice department's request, it was announced yesterday. An FBI spokesman said several agents have been sent to Luzerne and Lackawanna counties to question certain persons.

The complaints charged ballot frauds in the Democratic contest for the U.S. senatorial nomination between Genevieve Blatt, state secretary of internal affairs, and Justice Michael A. Musmanno of the state supreme court. Miss Blatt holds a statewide lead of 640 votes over Musmanno.

In Lackawanna county Musmanno swamped Miss Blatt, 23,921 to 6,546 but in the county 377 challenged absentee ballots are still at issue. In Luzerne County Musmanno also had the edge 15,769 to 10,232.

Flowers Laid At Bova Grave

HAZLETON, Pa. (AP) — A simple wreath of flowers fastened to a rough pin board was placed on the ground at the nearby Sheppton coal mine in Memorial Day remembrance of Louis Bova, who lost his life in a cavein last summer.

Mrs. Bova, accompanied by relatives and members of the American Legion, placed the wreath near the mine shaft from which Henry Throne, 29, and David Fellin, 59, were hauled to safety in a dramatic rescue late last August.

The miners were imprisoned in the more than 300-foot shaft for two weeks. Bova's body was never recovered.

After the Legion fired a volley of three shots and read prayers, Mrs. Bova told Arthur Knelly, commander of the Sheppton American Legion post:

"Thank you from the bottom of my heart for remembering my husband today."

Block Burns In Wilkes-Barre

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. (AP) — A general alarm fire early Sunday destroyed a large part of a block of Barney st. in south Wilkes-Barre. Damage was estimated unofficially at several hundred thousand dollars. Thirteen families were made homeless.

Clark Predicts Rights Bill Passage

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., said Sunday he has hopes that a showdown vote on the civil rights bill will come by June 10, but that if it doesn't, he is ready "to go into a long hot summer."

Clark, one of the senate leaders in the fight for broader civil rights for minorities, asserted, "In my judgment it is going to be pretty nip-and-tuck, but sooner or later reason will prevail." The senate has been debating the bill for 12 weeks.

Clark, appearing on the nationally televised CBS program, "Face the Nation," said, in answer to a question, that he thought the outcome of Tuesday's primary election in California would have no effect on the fate of the bill.

Reform Congress

Long a crusader for congressional reform, Clark said "the modern world moves very quickly and congress will just have to speed up procedure, streamline it."

Concerning the seniority rule for committee chairmanships, the senator said he favored not the abolition of seniority but modification.

"I would have the chairman elected by secret ballot of the committee members," Clark said. "If we had that kind of check on an unbridled chairman then we would be in business."

Commends Scranton

Clark said he doubted that any Republican presidential candidate will be able to beat President Johnson in November, but added that the favorite son, Gov. Scranton, if nominated, probably would do somewhat better than any of the other possible choices.

Clark commented briefly on the intra-party fight in Pennsylvania which resulted in a bitterly fought primary election contest for the U.S. senatorial nomination between Miss Genevieve Blatt, state secretary of internal affairs, and Justice Michael Musmanno, of the state supreme court. Miss Blatt, backed by Clark, has a lead of somewhat more than 1 votes over her rival, backed by the Democratic organization. Complaints of alleged vote frauds have been made here and in some other parts of the state.

See Blatt Victory

Clark said these reports of fraud might have some effect on the fate of his party's nominee, but that he is confident that Miss Blatt, if declared the winner, would be able to defeat the incumbent, Republican Hugh Scott.

"Liberals must be completely honest," Clark said in response to questions about his political philosophy. "People become disillusioned with crooked liberals more than they do with crooked conservatives.

"The aroma of corruption has got to be removed from the Democratic party if it is to have that long-range success we desire."

But, he went on, "certain Pennsylvania counties, Delaware and Northumberland are run by as old-fashioned type political bosses as you'll find, but they are Republican bosses. For every vote stolen by the democrats in the primary in Philadelphia I'll give you two or three by the Republicans in Delaware county, and maybe four or five in Northumberland."

Senator Hugh Scott

Scott Decries Big Brother Dependence

WAYNE, Pa. (AP) — Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., told Valley Forge Military Academy graduates Sunday "there almost seems to be an undercurrent of desire for the Big Brother who will take charge of our destinies, and indeed, every facet of our daily lives."

"Far too many of our youth today profess to be unable to find any real and abiding faith in life, in ethics, religion, judgments of right and wrong," Scott said.

"The awesome image of the mushroom cloud, the fierce onrush of technological change, shifting social patterns, and the relentless drive of Communist imperialism have all contributed to a feeling that our destinies are not our own, that do what we will, we are the victims of forces which we as tiny individuals cannot control."

But, he continued, "great ends are not achieved by the fearful, the timid, the uncertain. And never forget that since World War II over 10 million people have fled the false paradise of Communism in the hope of achieving what you and I already have—freedom.

"There is still much unfinished business in our country and the world. If our problems loom large, our challenges and opportunities loom larger. Have confidence in the future's opportunities rather than despair over the future's uncertainties."

Goddard Asks Action On Project 70

HARRISBURG (AP) — Maurice K. Goddard, secretary of forests and waters, wants speedier senate action on enabling legislation for Project 70.

At the same time, he urged the senate Saturday to change some amendments added to the legislation now on the floor of the chamber.

"We want to get moving," he said. "Time is extremely important on this legislation. We've been trying for seven months to get it passed.

"Much of the 40,000 to 50,000 acres we have in mind for the program aren't going to be available forever."

Enabling legislation for the $70 million conservation and recreation program was released to the floor of the senate last week by the forests and waters committee.

Goddard, however, was not quite satisfied with some amendments by the committee.

One change he advocated was in the in-lieu-of-taxes provision added to the legislation.

The amendment would require payments by the state instead of taxes on acquired lands until assessments in the local government subdivision recover from the loss of taxable land.

Goddard said he has no quarrel with the idea of the amendment, but urged that the payments be delayed until July 1, 1965, so they can be programmed in the budget.

"We have no way to pay the taxes at the present time," he said." . . . Unless a 1965 effective date is written into this section we'll have to wait another year before we can begin acquisitions."

Goddard said he also opposed an amendment requiring payment of 20 cents an acre in perpetuity on Project 70 lands after in-lieu-of-tax payments have ended.

"We make such payments on forest and game lands but these lands do not have the development potential of lands in the new program," he said.

Goddard said he also opposed an amendment requiring the provision of alternate roads if feasible when existing roads are disturbed by a project.

Scranton Cutting State Jobs

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Scranton has embarked on a renewed austerity program.

Jack Conmy, the governor's press secretary, confirmed Saturday that the governor revived his program after state employment rose by 3,000—to 83,000—since last September.

Scranton has given a memorandum to all cabinet heads and commissions and boards under his jurisdiction that vacant positions must be abolished unless essential, Conmy said.

Scranton also requested each department head to review his payroll to determine whether all jobs are necessary and whether those filling them are performing efficiently, Conmy added.

State Agrees To Chester School Study

HARRISBURG (AP) — The department of public instruction, in response to a request from the Chester school board, has agreed to make a "professional examination" of that racially troubled city's school system.

Dr. George W. Hoffman, acting superintendent of public instruction, designated Dr. Neal V. Musmanno, a deputy superintendent, and Dr. Paul L. Glatzert to head the inspection.

Hoffman said in a letter to Thomas J. Lyons, secretary of the Chester school board:

"We want you to know that the department desires to do what it can in order to help you arrive at a satisfactory solution to the problems confronting the school district."

The letter, mailed Thursday, was made public by the department Saturday.

The school board has been accused by civil rights groups of fostering de facto segregation in the system.

Civil rights leaders there have charged that four all-Negro schools in the city are substandard.

Eastburg's Recreational Needs Cited By Planners

(This is the sixth in a series of articles reviewing a comprehensive plan and related 20-year capital improvement program submitted to East Stroudsburg Borough Council by the Planning Commission.)

By GIL MURRAY
Daily Record Staff Reporter

EAST STROUDSBURG — Citing recreation as one of the most essential elements of a contemporary community, the comprehensive plan for East Stroudsburg calls for building seven new playgrounds in the borough by 1980.

See Editorial

Recreation facilities was only one of five areas found lacking in the three-year study made by Candeub, Cabot and Associates of Scranton, planning consultants commissioned by the borough planning commission.

Other areas in need of improvement are fire safety, public buildings, streets, water utility and urban renewal.

The entire program will cost $1,945,000 over a 20-year period and can be accomplished by keeping the tax rate at "the present 17 mill level."

Urban Renewal

Urban renewal and water distribution are already well on their way to completion.

The borough is presently pushing to finish the Lincoln Ave. and S. Courtland St. renewal projects. Both projects will cost the borough approximately $40,000.

The borough recently started construction on a $750,000 water filtration plant, of which the federal government contributed $350,000.

The master plan calls for building playgrounds in the King Street, Eagle Valley, Bricktown, Crestview Heights, Ridgeway and College Heights areas.

The planners also urge improving the East Stroudsburg playground and adding recreational facilities at the junior-senior high school.

Schools Adequate

When surveyed in 1960 the borough's schools were adequate to handle the 1960 population.

By 1980 however, the planners found the population will go from the 1960 figure of 6,972 to approximately 8,000 and will demand building new schools.

Planned for the future is an elementary school in the College Heights section of the borough. This is proposed to handle the expected development in that area.

The plan also calls for opening the old N. Courtland St. Elementary School. This project is presently being carried out by the East Stroudsburg Area School District.

The borough's elementary system will rely on a new laboratory school included in the expansion program at East Stroudsburg State College.

The junior-senior high school, built in 1959, is adequate for the needs of the foreseeable future. The plan proposes the school district buy four and one-half acres on the west side of its present ground to meet expansion that may take place.

The borough facilities program included in the comprehensive plan envisions a combination borough building-police headquarters building to the north of the present building.

This improvement can be an important element in the future of the downtown area.

It would, for example, replace an incompatible existing residential use, increase the supply of off-street parking, permit badly realignment of S. Courtland St. at that point and generally improve the appearance of the central business district," the plan points out.

Police Okay

The police department was stamped as "adequate" by the plan. The department does however, suffer from the lack of a jail, which would be eliminated by new headquarters.

The plan found the 60-man Acme Volunteer Fire Co. provides good fire protection for the borough. If a new borough and police building is built the present borough building should be given to the fire company.

In addition to the Lincoln Ave. and S. Courtland St. projects, the plan calls for five more urban renewal developments before 1980.

Projects outlined in the plan are:

—N. Courtland St. redevelopment. This 22-acre area between N. Courtland St. and the railroad north of Analomink St. would be used for an industrial park.

—Day St. rehabilitation. This project calls for the rehabilitation of deteriorating structures, some limited clearance, improvement of community facilities and streets and housing for the elderly.

— Kistler St. Rehabilitation. The area in need of work lies along the railroad from north of Analomink St. to Elk St. and contains approximately 26 acres.

—N. Courtland St. rehabilitation. A 30-acre section directly north of the railroad. This project—to eliminate blighting—is scheduled after 1983.

—King St. rehabilitation. The project area is located along the northern end of King St., covering approximately 36 acres of residential development.

Old Chain Letter With New Wrinkle

STROUDSBURG—Charles D. Hogan, Jr., assistant county agent, warns that the old-fashioned chain letter has been cropping up in the form of bond letters.

He says that recently several people have contacted his office about letters asking the addresses to purchase savings bonds in the names of two other people.

Here's how he explained it:

In the letter would be a list of 10 names. You'd send one bond to the person who sent you the letter, the other to the person whose name was at the top of the list.

Then you'd add your name to the bottom of the list and send it to 10 other people. The idea is that after some time, you'd receive thousands of bonds when your name reached the top of the list.

This idea is as old a trick as the shell game, Hogan warns. It is a fraudulent scheme, whether or not the bonds are sent through the mails.

He said that the Treasury Dept. has told banks not to issue bonds when they knew they'd be involved in a chain letter.

His advice: Throw the letter away and save yourself the money.

4 Monroe Men Gave 5 Gallons Of Blood

Four Monroe County men who have given five gallons or more of blood to the Red Cross will be honored Thursday evening, June 4, at the East Stroudsburg State College. The occasion will be the annual membership meeting of the Monroe County Chapter of the American National Red Cross.

The five-gallon donors are Elias Wedger of 10 Gilbert St., East Stroudsburg; Tony Gallagher of 227 S. Crystal St., East Stroudsburg; William Loder of Delaware Water Gap and James Oakey, fire chief at the Tobyhanna Army Depot.

Following the meeting, a spectacular water display titled "Let's Get In The Swim," will be put on in the college swimming pool. The demonstrations, under the direction of Mrs. Sandra Wakefield Terrell, chapter water safety chairman, will include a comedy skit, "The unsinkable Flintstones."

The public is invited to witness the water safety demonstrations, which are scheduled to get under way at 8:15 p.m.

Area residents are also invited to attend the dinner at 6:30. Reservations may be made by calling local Red Cross headquarters, 421-0660.

Lawsuit Dismissed

SCRANTON — A $270,000 law suit against the Buck Hill Falls Co. and Worthington Mower Co. over an alleged 1960 golf cart accident was dismissed Friday in federal court after a jury deliberated for four hours.

Plaintiffs in the action were Edward and Elizabeth Naumann of Hempstead, Long Island.

The trial was held before Chief Judge Michael H. Sheridan in Scranton.

The lawsuit centered around injuries suffered by Mrs. Naumann on June 16, 1960, when a golf cart she and her husband were riding in tipped over en route from the eighth green to the nine green at Buck Hill.

The couple contended the brakes on the cart failed. Worthington, owner of the cart, denied faulty brakes and Buck Hill disclaimed liability.

Ruling Appeal

SCRANTON — A former Mount Airy Lodge employee has appealed to Lackawanna County Court a Workmen's Compensation Board ruling absolving the resort from liability for injuries he suffered on Sept. 20, 1962.

Chester Moczulski of Dickson City is seeking to collect benefits for back injuries he allegedly suffered when he fell while working in the kitchen at Mount Airy in Swiftwater.

Lynch To Talk To Jaycees

STROUDSBURG — Jesse Lynch, president of the Monroe County chapter of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People will address the Pocono Mountains Junior Chamber of Commerce tonight at 8 p.m. in the Penn-Stroud Hotel.

Lynch will discuss the status and future of the civil rights bill now stymied in a Senate filibuster.

He will also give a community report on the activities during the first six months of the local NAACP.

Rooney Praises McNamara

BETHLEHEM — U. S. Rep. Fred B. Rooney, speaking at Northampton County Memorial Day services, praised Robert McNamara, secretary of defense, as one of America's "finest public servants and greatest businessmen."

Speaking in Bethlehem, Rooney said McNamara has "revolutionized the theories of military procurement and made our various branches of the service more truly inter-dependent than ever before."

Rooney said:

"For years, military rivalry between the service branches has produced a thankless controversy which none of them could win.

"Today, thanks to the efforts of Secretary McNamara, the late President Kennedy and President Johnson, our Department of Defense is functioning far more smoothly than ever before.

"We are getting more for our defense dollar, despite the fact that we have been forced to carry the struggle for freedom to carry the struggle for freedom to far-flung outposts and assist in tragically difficult internal conflicts which are both frustrating, and, at the same time, indispensable to the fight against the spread of tyranny."

Parades Quieter In '64

By JEFF COX
Daily Record Reporter

EAST STROUDSBURG — It came drumming and blaring down sunny, leafy Washington St., in East Stroudsburg—like Memorial Day parades have for quite a few years.

Led by the Keystone Grenadiers, fluorescent in their jackets, the drum and bugle corps was auspicious. The watchers saw Co. C, of the state National Guard crunch by, the locomotive of the 40 & 8, Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, high school bands, some trucks, but then . . . the parade wasn't long; It lasted 20 minutes.

The units in the parade made up for the paucity of paraders by the quality of enthusiasm. They brought memories of Memorial Day parades during WWII, when every fire truck and tin wagon crowded into the streaming, tooting, and cymbal-crashing line of march.

But then . . . the parade wasn't long. Few flags were waved. There was no trouble finding a spot to watch. The kids didn't have to sit on their father's shoulders to see.

The parade thumped and banged its way to Stroudsburg's courthouse square where District Attorney James R. Marsh introduced W. C. G. Peterson, the main speaker.

During the parade, action was stopped while wreaths were placed on the War Memorial of the George N. Kemp Post 346, American Legion.

Remembering the dead didn't take as long as it used to. The parade wasn't long.

Services For Eisele Held

TANNERSVILLE — Funeral services for William John Eisele, 77, of Tannersville were held at 10 a.m. Saturday in the Lady of Victory Chapel in Tannersville.

The Rev. Robert Gallagan officiated. Burial was in the Gates of Heaven section of the Laurelwood Cemetery in Stroudsburg.

Pallbearers were Richard Saylor, Harry Jansen, Adolph Oltman, and Walter Carrigan.

Barrett Bugged By Bugs

By PAT WILLIAMS
Daily Record Reporter

CANADENSIS — Being "bugged" usually means being bothered, but lately, in Barrett Township, the term has come to mean "bothered by bugs."

Small black, flying insects that lunch and munch on any available skin surfaces have become the topic of conversation and — invectives.

The pests have not been officially classified on a county level, according to the Monroe County Agriculture Extension office, but phone calls concerning them have set off a chain reaction and the subject under discussion will be taken up with an entimologist.

Called, "biting midges" by some, "black flies" by others and "May flies" (thought they last all summer) by others, the final classification by all is distinctly unpleasant.

Personal remarks on the parentage of these pests are passed as angry slaps on exposed skin areas narrowly missing the lunching flie.

Research and sifting comments discloses that the bugs appear the second week in June for a summer residence. They apparently enjoy areas and in woods, fresh digging or cultivation and damp places.

The ratio of bites goes up with the decline of temperature making early morning and dusk meal-time for the winged visitors. They don't take time off for siesta however, children are targets in the hair, along the hairline, ears and faces, any time of day.

Gardeners are driven indoors and patio-sitters find they are joined at barbecue time by uninvited guests. Ants would be a welcome addition to picnics in the face of these pervading insects.

An overall spraying program would be well-nigh impossible. The quantity of DDT necessary to penetrate wooded areas would reach a dangerous level and 631 square miles of Monroe County would lose much more than the bugs . . . they would lose birds, fish and possibly humans at such a concentration.

The war must be waged on a personal level. Using 1½ cups of DDT or methochlor to a gallon of water (these are exact recipes) and spraying shrubs, tree trunks and building foundations will kill each property-owner's share. Draining wet and swampy areas will take care of some of the worst (or best, depending on whether a human or a bug considers it) breeding areas.

The spraying of such areas would have to be done each day since as has been noted, the bugs fly and could move in on a property overnight.

Since an early demise of all the pests is not expected, hardy individuals intent on enjoying the out-of-dors can protect themselves by using preparations designed to ward off attack. The commercial preparation, "6-12" in all forms is recommended for its chemical content by the county office, although they do not commercialize or underwrite any product.

A second protection recommended is diethyltoluamide, known as Delphene. This chemical is listed on the cans or containers of bug repellants and is effective. The old stand-by, citronella, seems to have taken a "back seat" to modern chemicals. Or, the bugs have developed a taste for the stuff. But, the newer chemical formulas are doing the job for keeping flying guests away from picnicking people.

Yetter, Eshbach Back Same Bills

HARRISBURG — State Representatives Van D. Yetter, Democrat, of Monroe County and J. Russell Eshback, Republican, of Pike County voted in favor of seven house bills last week. They were:

—Joint House-Senate resolution directing the Joint State Government Commission to study and investigate the alleged traffic ticket racket in Philadelphia as exposed by syndicated columnist Mason Denison.

—Appropriating $500,000 to the Department of Public Instruction for the State Board of Education for the purpose of carrying out research projects.

—Concurrence on Senate amendments appropriating $110,000 for blind veterans' pensions.

— Appropriating $729,037 to the Department of Public Welfare for the reimbursement to community hospitals throughout the state under the newly instituted "purchase of care" program for indigents, replacing the old system of outright state aid grants on a per diem basis.

— Billion-dollar-plus general appropriations" bill covering "ordinary expenses of the executive, legislative and judicial" branches of state government during the fiscal year starting July 1.

—Appropriating $2,500 to the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission to aid in the maintainance and operation of a shrine to house the replica of the Liberty Bell.

Scott's Votes

State Senator William Z. Scott, Republican, joined with the Senate when it passed the bills giving money for the state Board of Education and community hospitals.

Other bills favored by Scott and approved by the Senate were:

-- Appropriating $500,000 to the Department of Mines and Mineral Industries for coal research and acid mine drainage.

—Appropriating $31,584 to the Department of Military Affairs for certain expenses necessary for payment of Korean veterans' compensation.

—Appropriate $154,560 to the Department of Public Instruction for establishing network facilities to link educational broadcasting facilities.

—Amend the Public Assistance Law to extend public nursing home care to include inpatient treatment and care in geriatric centers operated by the Department of Public Welfare.

Eastburg Master Plan

One of the last requirements for federal urban renewal assistance in East Stroudsburg redevelopment projects is formal adoption by the borough council of a master plan for future development of the borough. The council is scheduled to consider it Tuesday night.

The requirement is sound.

Proper development and administration of zoning, building and other municipal codes also required for federal urban renewal funds depend upon a carefully-prepared master plan for the future.

The East Stroudsburg Planning Commission has worked on this master plan of development over five years with professional planning consultants.

It is an effort to predict future population, business, school, traffic, public facility and other problems and lay down guidelines for their solution before it is too late or too costly.

The East Stroudsburg master plan is a conservative document. It suggests capital improvements of $1,945,000 over a 20-year period, with $400,000 of that figure already committed for the current water system improvement.

These projects, mostly street improvements, are detailed in a current Daily Record series of articles. See story on Page 3.

The plan states flatly that the improvements may be made with no increase in the present 17 mill tax rate, a difficult proposition when the rate is being held at that level this year only by borrowing.

While it seems unlikely, it is not impossible that projected increases in assessed property will come fast enough to cover new borough tax revenue needs.

If the 45 per cent of the borough still open land is developed along lines suggested in the master plan, increased assessments will yield much higher tax revenue without big increases in taxes.

Urban renewal itself in S. Courtland St. and Lincoln Ave areas will prove this point. As soon as these areas are redeveloped and back on the tax rolls with higher assessments, East Stroudsburg taxpayers will appreciate the effort involved in urban renewal.

The nature of a master plan is often misunderstood.

It is not a law or an ordinance which cannot be violated. It is a statement of borough policy, but it does not in itself require anything.

For instance, the master plan suggests further urban renewal in the N. Courtland St. area. It cannot require it. Borough council adoption of the master plan does not commit this or future councils to N. Courtland St. redevelopment.

That, if anything is the weakness of federally-required master plans. Too many of them end up on council shelves, gather dust and are never read or consulted.

We hope the master plan is accepted by the borough council, read thoroughly by all East Stroudsburg officials now and in the future, and above all used as a guide for the future of East Stroudsburg.

The Allen-Scott Report

Russia Reported Sneaking New Missiles Into Cuba

Paul Scott

WASHINGTON — Russia is again sneaking ballistic missiles into Cuba capable of destroying southern U.S. cities.

This grim disclosure, circulating at the highest level in the State Department, is based on "hard information" given U.S. authorities by highly reliable sources inside Cuba.

These sources warn that a number of T-1 and T-10 ground-to-ground IRBMs unexpectedly appeared on the island following the arrival of three Soviet bloc ships in May.

The missiles, capable to carrying nuclear warheads, are estimated to have ranges from 400 to 600 miles — about half the range of the rockets Khrushchev sent to Cuba in 1962.

This ominous threat was first discovered by Cuban refugees last month and confirmed in the past week by sources U.S. intelligence authorities regard as their best.

The new IRBMs are hidden in carefully camouflaged storage areas that cannot be spotted from the air. All efforts by the CIA to locate and photograph the missiles, with high-flying U-2 planes, have failed.

Still undetermined are the state of operational readiness of the missiles and their exact number. The intelligence estimate detailing their presence points out that additional rockets could be on the high seas aboard Russian ships enroute to Cuba from Black Sea ports.

The arrival of more missiles, according to one high-level administration official, could touch off another major Cuban crisis comparable to the October-November 1962 missile confrontation.

No determination could be made by this column as to whether these new missile findings have been shown President Johnson or whether the information is being withheld pending further confirmation by new U-2 flights over the island.

Soviet Strategy — With no "hard" intelligence available on Premier Khrushchev's intentions, U.S. military experts have very little to go on in trying to determine how the missiles will be used.

One group of these experts stresses that the shorter-ranged IRBMs could be used by Castro as a threat to retaliate against southern U.S. cities if President Johnson doesn't step in and stop the anti-Castro raids.

Another group holds that Castro might threaten to destroy the Latin American and Caribbean bases of these raiders unless they are dismantled.

The mysterious reappearance of the missiles is only one of the startling new developments inside Cuba. The other is an unpublicized order by Castro reintroducing the teaching of English in all elementary and high schools.

While the dropping of English in favor of Russian was done with much fanfare in 1961 after Castro announced he was a dedicated Communist, the latest switch was ordered without public announcement.

The change reportedly was masterminded by Castro's Soviet advisers as part of their program to make Cuba the main base of Communist subversion and infiltration of the U.S.

Unbelievable as it may sound, one high Cuban official told a Japanese businessman in Havana recently that Cuba is training its people to speak English because "the take-over of the U.S. is only a matter of years away."

The Other Crisis — Secretary of State Rusk is getting a much better response to his call for help in South Viet Nam from other Asian nations than he expected or apparently wants.

Seven countries, including four Asian, have already offered Premier Nguyen Khanh's hard-pressed government combat and non-combatant help to prosecute the war against the Communist Viet Cong.

While Rusk has given General Khanh U.S. approval to accept non-combatant units from New Zealand, Australia and the Philippines, he is opposing the acceptance of combat troops and air units offered by South Korea and Nationalist China.

The latter military help, for which General Khanh is seeking U.S. approval, is an offer of both air and ground troops by the Chiang government.

The Generalissimo wants to furnish both planes and pilots to train South Vietnamese pilots and fly air cover over the troops, and several thousand U.S.-trained ranger troops to either fight, or train the Vietnamese.

South Korea's offer includes 5,000 specially-equipped ranger troops to train and fight alongside the Vietnamese special forces now being reorganized for possible use behind enemy lines in North Viet Nam and Laos.

In both instances Secretary Rusk, with White House support, vetoed General Khanh's acceptance of the forces on the ground that use of these anti-communist troops might incite the Chinese Communists to escalate the war by sending in thousands of "volunteers" as they did in Korea.

Still undecided is whether the U.S. will put up the necessary money for Japan and Thailand to send non-combatant units to South Viet Nam. On all aid offers, General Khanh must obtain U.S. approval since this government will pay the costs.

Dear Abby

Speak Up, Man

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for six years and have never suspected my wife of anything. While searching for a match I looked in her coat pocket and came across a letter (addressed to her mother's house). I became curious and read the following:

"It was so good to hear your voice again, Darling. I am glad you still feel the same about me. As long as you don't love your husband, how long will it take you to get a divorce?"

I have not told her I read the letter. I was so hurt I just froze. The letter was signed with an initial which meant nothing to me. Where do I go from here? P.S. Yes, we have children.

DEAR SICK: Go to your wife and tell her you read the letter. The next move is hers.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are nearing 50. My father, who is 80, lives with us. We let him know that 'our home is his home, and when we entertain he is made to feel as welcome as any guest. Here is my problem, and please don't think I am terrible. My husband and I never have any time alone. If we go to the kitchen for coffee, Papa parks himself right there. Sometimes my husband and I want to discuss something in private, but it has to wait because of Papa. How does a daughter go about telling her own father that she would like a few minutes alone with her husband once in a while? Papa is of sound mind, and in good health for his age. He has been with us 16 years, although he has other children he could have lived with. This is the first time I have considered mentioning something to him about this. Should I?

ALL CHOKED UP

DEAR CHOKED: Yes. A little privacy is better than none. Your papa may be unaware of his intrusion. First, see that he has a comfortable and attractive retreat of his own. Then break your "problem" to him gently and with good humor. If he is of "sound mind" he won't resent it. If he does, your problem is bigger than you know. And you could face years of unnecessary unpleasantness and tension.

DEAR ABBY: This is for BUSY MOTHER, whose children answer the phone, "Who is this?"

My son is a lawyer and he has four children ranging from five to eleven years of age. He once overheard his daughter answer the telephone, "Nobody is home. Goodbye." My son was furious. He lined them all up and taught them to say, "This is the Joseph residence. Linda speaking." Why can't other parents do this?

GRANDMOTHER M.

DEAR GRANDMOTHER: They can. And they probably would if they ever caught their youngsters answering the telephone the way your grandchild did.

Walter Lippmann

U.S. Asian Quandry

By Walter Lippmann

It is fair enough to say, as Sen. Everett Dirksen did this week, that our policy in Southeast Asia has been indecisive? Indeed, it has been.

The reason for this indecision, which has existed under three Presidents — Eisenhower, Kennedy and Johnson — is not that all three Presidents have been weak and wavering men. It is that since we allowed ourselves to become entangled in Southeast Asia there has been no good solution available which any of the three Presidents felt he could be decisive about.

After the French were defeated in 1954, our cardinal mistake in Southeast Asia was the decision of Secretary John Foster Dulles to treat South Viet Nam, which is an artificial creation and not really a natoelonal state at all, as an American protectorate and as an outpost of the West.

The Eisenhower administration, directed in this matter by Secretary Dulles, did not oppose, but it refused to support the settlement of Vietnam which was worked out at the first Geneva conference in 1954.

The United States government helped to pick Diem as chief of South Vietnam, and, until the coup of last autumn, Diem and his family were supported by us as the rulers of South Vietnam; and they became the clients of the United States.

This put us in an inherently untenable position. It committed the United States to a struggle on the land and in the jungles near the frontiers of the largest nation in Asia.

In spite of the endless official assurances of how the struggle was being won, there has never been a time when a military victory, or anything like a military victory, has been possible.

Even if one of the Presidents had been willing to intervene with an American Army on the scale of Korea, even if he had unleashed the Air Force, no acceptable or tolerable outcome was visible.

For once the American troops were engaged, there would be no way of withdrawing. The territory they had occupied would be reoccupied by the Asian multitude who would be more fiercely determined than ever to do away with the presence of the Western white man.

There has never been any other way out of the dead-end street in Southeast Asia except to make a political agreement, to construct international machinery and to exert what influence we can by underwriting them.

President Kennedy made a fragmentary attempt to do this. He tried it in Laos, but he allowed himself to remain entangled in South Vietnam, and he was drawn into an ever enlarging, continually unsuccessful military struggle which has no visible end.

To those who think, as I do, that the military commitment in Southeast Asia has been a mistake, the question now is how to discharge the commitment honorably and to disengage safely. The basic principle is, I think, quite clear. We must look for a solution, not by expanding the war, but by taking it to the conference table, whether to a reconvened Geneva conference or to the United Nations, or both.

The proposal to expand the war by bombing North Vietnam and China requires, if we stop pretending that the South Vietnamese pilots are capable of carrying out such an attack, a declaration of war against North Vietnam and China by the Congress of the United States. We cannot make war on North Vietnam by executive order.

No man living can possibly know what such a war would precipitate or what the Soviet Union would do, since it is still the ally of China.

But what we can be sure of is that to go to war with China about South Vietnam would be so reckless an act as to damage deeply our influence throughout the world. It would be no less unpopular in the United States.

It is not easy for any country to repair its mistakes, especially those in which it has invested lives, money and moral judgments. But the original mistake in Southeast Asia has to be repaired.

The way to do this is to go to a conference. The chances of its being successful are not brilliant, but at least we shall not be alone. Even if the prospects of a conference are not brilliant, the military outlook in South Vietnam is d smal beyond words.

I have been asked whether a negotiated settlement for Southeast Asia means that, as soon as our troops are withdrawn from Saigon, the North Vietnamese and the Chinese will move in.

The honest answer to this question is, I believe, that if this can be prevented for a few years there will be a chance that it will not happen at all.

Although I realize that in the long run Southeast Asia is bound to lie within the Chinese sphere of influence -- as Chiang Kai-Shek has always insisted -- I think it may be possible to prevent any sudden and overt occupation of Southeast Asia.

It may be feasible to make it too dangerous and not worthwhile in comparison with the prospects of access to the economic resources of Southeast Asia and beyond.

I think, moreover, that if an international structure can be created, one which is guaranteed by the Soviet Union, the United States, France, Great Britain and China, North Vietnam will tend to go Titoist; that is to say to remain Communist, but not Chinese.

What will do most for our real interests in Southeast Asia is not to bomb Hanoi, but to create a visible guarantee which makes it safe for Hanoi not to be, as it has always striven not to be, a Chinese satellite.

The Pennsylvania Story

Ticket Racket Probe

By Mason Denison

HARRISBURG — Considerable aplomb was shaken on Capitol Hill the other day when the House of Representatives by a somewhat overwhelming 2 to 1 vote cleared legislation calling for a legislative investigation of the Philadelphia traffic ticket racket that for years has plagued upstate Pennsylvanians.

The measure, a full-blown joint House-Senate resolution, now is in the Senate Rules Committee headed by Majority Floor Leader James B. Berger, who indicated the measure would probably be considered by his committee this week—with indications strong it would be reported out for full Senate floor action.

"What happens to the resolution is up to the committee itself, of course," the Senator from Potter County commented, "but it would seem to me that it would receive favorable consideration and be reported out without delay."

But what shattered the aplomb of many on Capitol Hill in the action by the House was: (a) the vote by which the resolution cleared the lower chamber (112-57), and (b) the fact that most on-the-surface observers, top Administration aides and state-level motordom association officials believed (and hoped) the measure to be dead and buried.

The facts in the case are simple—but noteworthy.

Nearly everyone "knew" the traffic ticket mess that now marks Philadelphia existed; had existed for years.

Mr. C. E. Pugh, general manager of the Pennsylvania Motor Federation (whose organization represents the very motorists who have been snagged in the Philadelphia traffic ticket maw!) likes to refer to his "five-inch thick" file of cases of upstate motorists who have been issued traffic tickets but were not in the city on the violation date cited—but that's about where it has ended.

It is true that Mr. Pugh and Administration aides (who don't like to become involved in a ruckus either) have minced back and forth to Philadelphia "to discuss" the ((nettling) situation—but over the years, as the record clearly shows, that is where it has ended.

Not a single, lazy finger was raised in the direction of doing something about the mess until this column in a series of four articles in January and subsequent individual columns brought about a statewide expose of the asinine Philadelphia situation and called for a legislative investigation.

What was — and is — at point is "why" the condition flourished as long and flagrantly as it did (fantastically out of all proportion); "who" if anyone was behind it (the racket aspect is too glaring notwithstanding the soothings of the apologists), and if it was a racket ("make your checks out to me personally—not the traffic court"!), knock together the heads of those involved and responsible.

To those thousands of upstate motorists (our file is bulging too) who have been clobbered, threatened and browbeaten in proper psychological police-state tactics, who paid their $8 to $12 fines out of fear (for something they didn't do), or who took the time, effort and expense to swear out an affidavit (for something they didn't do)--a good healthy look-see into the mess that has been overlooked in the past is more than warranted; it is mandatory.

Speaking Of Your Health:

Nose Bleeds Controlled

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

The gentle art of nose picking, in children as well as adults, is often surreptitious and can even be performed with relative dignity and social grace by the use of a handkerchief to conceal the indelicate operation. BUT when the result is a gush of blood, many people react to this sight with terror and anxiety.

When this happens, you usually find as many suggestions for "instant control" as there are friends in the room These "cures" range from placing a copper penny under the lip to a bunch of cold keys at the nape of the neck.

Simple Procedure

There is a practical and simple procedure for stopping the average nose bleed. Pack the nostril firmly with a good-sized piece of dry absorbent cotton. After the cotton has been inserted, press the nostris together for five to ten minutes. This will almost always stop a simple nose bleed.

Most nose bleeds result from a break in one of the many small blood vessels that lie on the surface of the nasal septum (the wall of cartilage which divides one side of the nose from the other).

Another Cause

Crusts that sometimes develop in the nose, especially in children, often become hard and dry. Picking these crusts off the wall of the nasal septum may cause nose-bleeds.

Keeping the inside of the nostrils lubricated with a light oil or vaseline helps prevent the formation of crusts and softens crusts which have already formed. A vaporizer, too, diminishes dryness of the nose by increasing a room's humidity.

Of course, severe nasal bleeding can sometimes occur in association with general diseases. But this is one of the least frequent causes. It is highly unfair to one's emotions to consider that nose bleeds always mean serious trouble.

Repeated episodes of epistaxis (nose bleeds) deserve specialized study to discover the underlying cause.

Emergency Measures

When a nose bleed occurs, the following simple emergency measures will usually help to control the bleeding:

1) Pack the nose, as previously described. Press the nostrils together. Keep the cotton in for at least an hour. Nature's protective blood clot may be dislocated if the cotton is removed too quickly.

2) If the bleeding persists and your own physician is not available, doctors in the emergency room of any hospital are equipped to offer medical assistance.

Painless Performance

3) Cauterization of the broken vessel with silver nitrate or electric sparking is painless and easily performed when necessary.

4) Determine the basic cause of the nose bleed. In all likelihood, it will prove to be of minor importance.

Even a small amount of bleeding can be disturbing and terrorizing to the patient and to onlookers. It should be encouraging to know that most nose bleeds are of simple origin and easily controlled.

These columns are designed to relieve your fears about health through a better understanding of your mind and body. All the hopeful new advances in medicine reported here are known to doctors everywhere.

Your individual medical problems should be handled by your own doctor. He knows you best.

Never Too Late To Learn

Muhlenberg is a comparatively small college situated in Allentown. Unfortunately, if that is the right word, the Lutheran - supported institution of higher learning was little known to this writer except for its athletic prowess.

Even, at that, Muhlenberg has had little to crow about sports-wise except during the regimes of Doggie Julian and Benny Borgman (basketball) and Floyd (Ben) Schwartzwalder (football).

Further back they may have been well represented on the field of athletic combat but this was before our time.

Wednesday, though, Off The Record's ey were opened to the educational values offered by Muhlenberg. It came in a package labeled Dr. James Swain, historian and author. It was delivered to the Stroudsburg Kiwanis Club at its weekly meeting at the Penn-Stroud Hotel.

We've underestimated Muhlenberg. In fact, we take back the first two paragraphs of this missive and comment:

"They don't need athletic teams at Muhlenberg if the entire educational setup is built of the mold of Dr. Swain."

The veteran member of the Muhlenberg faculty digs for the information he passes out to service clubs and, we are sure — his classes. He backs every statement with facts that cannot be doubted. Also, Dr. Swain is a thinking man's teacher.

Fortunately — and this is the right word — the non-preacher is able to speak to the public and better emphasize the fact that Muhlenberg has a mighty fine educational plant.

Dr. Swain took to task money teachers who teach only for money; seekers of equality who fail to recognize the individual's rights; philosophies of today that were the same 2,500 years. And opponents of church - school, the perfect combination.

On the third point, he noted, Plato's presentation of democracy was just as good — maybe better — than those offered today by Democrats, Republicans, Independents and what have you.

After hearing Dr. Swain put forth the rights and rongs with our nation, we left the ballroom at the Penn-Stroud dedicated never to ask a result of a Muhlenberg athletic contest. Rather, we will query Rev. Pete Wohlsen, Rev. William C. Leopold, Bill Nixon, or Jim Marsh: "What's new in education at Muhlenberg? Surely the monthly report pinpoints the good that comes out of the Mules den. Something refreshing like Dr. Swain, let's say."

Stories Behind Words

Make One's Mark

When the signature of a person who cannot write is necessary, he is required to make an "X" at the place of signature and have it witnessed.

An "X" as a signature was not always used by a person who could not write. In ancient times, it was used by educated persons, for the "X"—or cross—was a sacred symbol and indicated good faith on the part of the one who used it.

The peasantry looked with awe upon a person who was important enough to put his "X" or "make his mark," as they called it, upon a document.

Therefore, a person who rose to such a position was said to have "made his mark" in the world.

Your Heart Has Nine Lives (12)

Don't Court Early Heart Attack

By Alton Blakeslee
and Jeremiah Stamler, M. D.

It looks and tastes exactly like a familiar frankfurter, but it's a special hot dog.

The vanilla ice cream looks and tastes just like ordinary ice cream, but is made from skim milk and vegetable oils. The cherry pie and chicken casserole are as tasty as ever, but like the hot dog and sausage, are deceptively low in saturated fats.

These and other foods are special ammunition in a major test of the idea that millions of Americans can eat to AVOID heart attacks.

It's been amply proven that diets low in hard fats and cholesterol can usually bring blood cholesterol down.

But, is it readily feasible for men and women en masse to alter their diets while living their normal lives? Can they lower their blood cholesterols, and keep them down for years?

And then—will they actually have fewer heart attacks?

These critical questions are answerable only through a huge field trial similar in basic respects to the field trial with children which proved the Salk polio vaccine to be safe, potent and effective.

Fifteen hundred volunteer married men aged 44 to 54 now are engaged in the first step of this diet test, consuming the special foods developed by scientists, nutritionists and food processors.

If these men show they can stick to their diet, and that it lowers cholesterol, then up to 100,000 middle - aged men may be asked to sign up for a trial lasting up to five years.

If those men escape heart attacks compared with men who keep eating typical diets, then we will have nailed down definite proof that diet changes can prevent heart attacks. There would then be little question that most people should change their food habits.

Scientists meanwhile are continuing vigorous research to complete our understanding of causes and prevention of heart attacks, to check out other clues and suspects, and to refine methods of detecting, very early, the men and women most susceptible to premature heart attacks.

But right now, you can make a vital decision.

You can choose to do nothing, and await the consequences.

Or—you can begin disarming the conspirators that are so powerfully implicated in promoting heart attacks too soon.

Your hope lies in living, while keeping all the known risks under control. It is not difficult, nor does it take forever to achieve.

In only a matter of weeks, for example, Tom Stevens transformed his risk of a premature attack from high to low.

Through a planned loss of two pounds a week, he dropped 24 pounds without going hungry. He slashed his blood cholesterol level by 40 per cent within a few weeks, down to a healthy reading.

His electrocardiogram—which had shown some abnormal tracings—returned to normal. His blood pressure came down a bit, even though it hadn't been abnormally high.

All he did was make some moderate changes in his habits, mainly in diet and in taking up mild exercise. Four years later, he's holding on to all these benefits, and he and Mrs. Stevens find the new habits completely comfortable, pleasant and reasonable.

All the evidence indicates he probably is protecting his heart, and could have fashioned a sturdier shield had he started earlier in life.

Why do we gamble and delay in adopting new and simple habits that cannot do any harm and which offer the only known means of protection?

Some delay because "the experts differ, so I can just wait until they settle the matter, and prove what I should do." But every major step in science and medicine has generally encountered resistance, objections, and debate.

It is ironic that quite a few voices urge delay in the matter of reasonable and safe dietary changes, while few caution about drugs. The drugs for treating high blood pressure were readily accepted before there was adequate proof that they prevented some heart attacks, heart failure, strokes and kidney failure.

An ancient illusion paralyzes action for sensible, effective health habits. It is the illusion that there must always be a neat and simple solution to any health question, usually some drug.

But no drugs are in sight that show any promise of really preventing the artery disease itself.

Moderation The Key

It is most impressively significant that once a man has had a heart attack, doctors almost invariably urge him to change his way of life—in hopes of preventing a second attack.

Then why not also try to protect the man who is heading for a heart attack, before it happens?

One argument is that not everyone is equally susceptible.

But the central fact is that a less susceptible in terms of the known risks we are harboring. By doing nothing, thousands and millions of men and women are being abandoned to their fate while they have a hopeful chance to prevent disaster.

By being too slow and cautious in correcting our abuse of abundance and prosperity, millions of young and middle-aged men will keep on collision course with heart attacks.

Your counterattack is neither "radical" nor difficult. The countermeasures are simple, and alluring old habits can be modified.

No one need become a hypochondriac, fearful of every shadow and statistic, every egg on his plate, every cigarette or cigar smoked, and every vague pain.

Adult people "must learn to distinguish between moderation and abuse," says Dr. Irvine H. Page. "Two packs of cigarettes a day to me is an abuse. Too much fat or too many calories is an abuse. Drinking during most parts of the day is an abuse. Doing no physical work is an abuse. The answer lies in disciplining one's self, not in forbidding."

The best prescription is one you can formulate for yourself—stop abusing the good things in our abundant life, and use today's knowledge in hopes of saving your heart.

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery Stops Itch—Relieves Pain

New York, N. Y. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching, and relieve pain — without surgery.

In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

Most amazing of all—results were so thorough that sufferers made astonishing statements like "Piles have ceased to be a problem!"

The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®)—discovery of a world-famous research institute.

This substance is now available in suppository or ointment form under the name Preparation H®. At all drug counters.

Will Bing Crosby Watch Wife In Playhouse Role?

MOUNTAINHOME — Will Bing Crosby be there? When Kathryn Grant Crosby comes to the Pocono Playhouse the week of August 10 as the star of Samuel Taylor's sparkling comedy-hit "Sabrina Fair", Bing may be in the audience.

Crosby has taken an active interest in his wife's fast growing career as a dramatic actress.

Within a month after their marriage, Kathryn was back before the cameras, co-starring with Van Heflin, Tab Hunter and James Darren in "Gunman Walk". Weekends she commuted to Palm Springs to join her husband. All this met with Bing's complete approval and blessing.

Texas-born, Kathryn had previously won her acting spurs in "Operation Mad Ball". She then went on to film "The Big Circus" and co-star with James Stewart in Otto Preminger's "Anatomy of A Murder".

Kathryn made her film debut in "Cell 2455, Death Row" playing a teen-age delinquent. Among the host of films that followed were, "Night the World Exploded", "Reprisal", and "Mister Cory" with Tony Curtis.

The Crosby's have three children, Harry Lillis, 4; Mary Frances, 3; and Nathaniel Patrick, 1. Despite the demands of her home and children, Mrs. Crosby has managed to keep her theatrical career spinning at top speed. She also tucks into her busy life, time for ballet lessons, daily sessions on the tennis court and recently she has taken up golf with the same seriousness which she brings to all her enterprises.

Following the Crosby starrer, "Sabrina Fair" (August 10-15) Imogene Coca and her husband King Donavan will co-star in the straight from Broadway "A Rainy Day In Newark", (August 17-22).

Darren McGavin starring in the comedy-hit "A Thousand Clowns" will fill the August 24 week, with Hermione Gingold set to star in the farce-comedy "Oh Dad, Poor Dad, Mamma's Hung You in the Closet and I'm Feeling So Sad", (August 31-Sept. 5).

The Pocono Playhouse opens June 15 with the international hit, "My Fair Lady", starring Craig Timberlake and Dran Seitz. The box office will be open June 1 for the sale of season tickets, single and theatre party tickets. Special discounts are given to organized groups of 100 or more.

Tickets [illegible] be ordered by mail or phone.

'Saint Joan' Slated For Mt. Pocono

MT. POCONO — The nationally known Bishop's Company of Burbank, California, will appear in person in highlights from George Bernard Shaw's classic play "Saint Joan" Saturday, June 6, at 8:30 p.m. in the Mt. Pocono Methodist Church, Belmont and Church Aves.

From the finest of English literature comes this story of Saint Joan, the story of the Maid's faith and inspiration. Joan's many faceted character from the peasant girl of Lorraine through her final consummation in Rouen, was never more contemporary than today when our world rests upon the conscience of each man and woman and their personal decisions.

The roles of the man who completed Joan's history provide a great portion of the excitement in this unusual evening of theatre. Meeting the challenge with deftness and skill, the actors present their several roles: the pompous Squire de Boudricourt; forceful and staunch Dunois, Captain of the French forces; as the sympathetic but militant churchman, Ladvanu; the childlike and sinister Inquisitor; and also the Archbishop of Rheims Cathedral.

The Bishop's Company was founded in 1952 by Mrs. Bokar and is in its eleventh year of bringing fine drama into the houses of worship in America and Canada. It has appeared in over 6,000 churches of all denominations and has a touring record of nearly a million miles.

The Bishop's Company will appear under the sponsorship of the Mount Pocono Methodist Church.

Mail delivery to East Bangor area homes and business houses will start Saturday, June 20.

The service approved as a result of a community by U.S. Rep. Fred B. Rooney, will cover about 1,000 residents.

On the same day, a branch postoffice will be set up in the Evans store, Central and Broad streets. Jesse Evans has been named acting postmaster, succeeding Mrs. Hazel Houseburg, who is retiring after 23 years in the postal service.

Dentists Elect Dr. Brennan

BUCK HILL FALLS — Dr. Naysh Brennan of 13 South Main Street, Shenandoah, today became president-elect of the Pennsylvania Dental Association, as the professional group's annual meeting came to a close.

He won the honor by vote of the association's house of delegates over Dr. George Boucek of Pittsburgh.

Dr. John Whittaker of Williamsport became president of the association. Dr. Whittaker will serve until May, 1965.

Elected without opposition to the post of vice president was Dr. Milton Rode of 4001 Spruce Street, Philadelphia.

Dr. Willis McCormick of Haverford Square Building, Haverford, was re-elected secretary, and Dr. John C. Piscator of 3463 Frankford Avenue, Philadelphia, wes re-elected treasurer.

Emlen To Quit State Position

HARRISBURG (AP) — Alan Y. Emlen, with the comment that professional licensing and [illegible]tics do not mix, said Saturday he intends to resign as [illegible] commissioner of professional and occupational affairs.

Emlen has been appointed chairman of the southeastern Pennsylvania Republican finance committee.

"I accepted this (the commissionership) as an assignment and not as a career," he said. "I feel I have completed my assignment and now I want to serve the Republican party in a volunteer capacity and get back to my real estate business."

Emlen, who heads the state's 16 professional licensing boards, said he would await the selection of a successor before submitting his resignation to Gov. Scranton.

It was Scranton who appointed him over a year ago after professional licensing was taken out of the department of public instruction and placed in the department of state.

Girl Wins Scholarship

Miss Jane Louise Stoffler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Stoffler, 110 W. Plainfield Ave., Pen Argyl, has been awarded a one-year state senatorial scholarship to Pennsylvania State University, according to an annoucement Saturday by Mrs. Louise Bethman, secretary to the late Sen. Gus P. Verona, 18th Senatorial District.

Miss Stoffler will be graduated next month from Pen Argyl Area Joint High School, where she was a member of the National Honor Society. She was also the recipient of a prize in the Lehigh Valley Science Fair.

She plans to major in one of the biological sciences at the university.

THERE'S NO HIDDEN COST WITH AN ELECTRIC CLOTHES DRYER
The only cost is when you use it. Most other type dryers cost you money 24 hours a day. They never shut off completely . . . unless by accident.
An electric dryer is easy on your clothes—keeps them white, fluffy and sweet-smelling. There's no odor, no risk of fume-fading. It's easy on you, too. Just set it and forget it. And remember, it's flameless. That means you can install it anywhere in the house—and move it any time to another convenient spot.
See your appliance dealer soon about an electric clothes dryer—the dryer that costs less to buy.

Lafayette's Goal $6,000

EASTON — Monroe County alumni and friends of Lafayette College are being asked to contribute at least $6,000 toward a $400,000 greater Easton area fund campaign for the college, it was reported today.

Monroe chairman George T. Mensch Jr. of Stroudsburg said that the twelve solicitors aiding the campaign in Monroe County will gather for their first report meeting Wednesday at 12:15 p.m. in Chariton's Lodge, East Stroudsburg.

The Monroe phase of the campaign was launched at a kick-off meeting last Wednesday in the Penn-Stroud Hotel, Stroudsburg.

Just under three-fourths of the $400,000 was reported as received at the most recent campaign meeting held in Hotel Easton last week. A total of $296,749 in gifts and pledges was tallied at the meeting.

Leaders of the greater Easton area campaign hope to reach the $400,000 goal by commencement weekend June 5 and 6.

The college's area campaign is the first of more than 20 that will be conducted in regions throughout the nation before the end of this year.

It is part of a three-year campaign for seven million dollars launched after the Ford Foundation named Lafayette the recipient of a two million dollar challenge grant last June.

Under terms of the grant, Lafayette will receive the full two million if it raises an additional five million by June 30, 1966.

1964 Winners of PP&L's 15 Scholarships

These Central Eastern Pennsylvania young people will be entering area colleges and universities this fall with the aid of PP&L grants, offered under two separate scholarship programs. Each PP&L program recognizes the diverse needs of society for college-trained young men and women.

INDEPENDENT COLLEGE SCHOLARSHIP PROGRAM

This program offers 10 scholarships for study at any of 15 colleges and universities located in PP&L's service area. Winners of these scholarships may pursue any course of study leading to a baccalaureate degree. Part of the grant is paid to the institution on behalf of the student. The remainder is paid unconditionally to the school to be used for any educational objective.

STATE COLLEGE SCHOLARSHIP PROGRAM

There are five scholarships offered under this program for attendance at any of four State colleges in PP&L's service area. This program is directed principally toward the ever-growing need for highly qualified teachers. However, applicants are not limited to this field. Grants are paid directly to the colleges on behalf of the winners.

WHY SUPPORT EDUCATION?

PP&L's scholarship programs are the result of a belief that progress is a product of education and that the nation needs the full potential of its capable young people.

* * *

High school students who will be seniors this fall are invited to enter the competition for the 1964 grants. High school guidance counselors will have the details.

Attorney: Bible Ruling 'Unsound'

STROUDSBURG — The president of the Monroe County Bar Assn. said Thursday the recent Supreme Court decision banning Bible reading and prayers in public schools was "unsound."

Atty. Arlington Williams of Stroudsburg told a meeting of the Republican Club of Monroe County he is in favor of amending the constitution to allow for Bible reading and prayer recitation in public schools.

In the meantime, he urged all citizens to comply with the court decision as being the law of the land.

Williams maintained federal courts have no jurisdiction over religion teachings in state public schools. He said the due process clause of the 14th amendment has no bearing on the constitution's first 10 amendments.

He also said he is in favor of passage of the civil rights bill but feared its enforcement might create another federal bureaucracy, with agencies in each of the 50 states.

Harold Kresge, county chairman, and Parke Unangst, state committeeman, reported on the state committee's recent reorganization meeting in Philadelphia. Kresge said Craig Truax was reelected state chairman by acclamation.

H. John Davis, of Mt. Pocono, GOP nominee for state representative, reviewed plans for the November general election.

School Bus In Accident

MT. POCONO — State Police at Mt. Pocono substation Friday reported a car-school bus accident that occurred on Tuesday, April 21. They said there were no injuries and that damages were less than $100.

According to police the drivers were Chauncey J. Hilliard, 48, of Stroudsburg, RD 3, and Clyde Curtis, 18, of Tannersville.

Both vehicles were traveling north on Rt. 611, about four miles south of Mt. Pocono. Hilliard, operating the school bus, attempted to pass a car in front of him. He pulled into the passing lane without looking to see if it was free of traffic.

As the school bus entered the passing lane it collided with the Curtis car.

State Police estimated damages to the school but at $5 and to the Curtis car, $90.

Hilliard was charged with improper passing.

YMCA Day Camp Staff Completed

STROUDSBURG — Monroe County YMCA Day Camp has completed its men's staff, Charles Reese, director, said yesterday.

Sterling Brown will supervise the camp. He is presently associated with Hofstra College and has taught health and physical education at Sleepy Hollow High School, Sleepy Hollow, N.Y., for two years.

He is a member of the American Assn. of Campers and has been a counselor at various camps in the area.

Roland Conklin is another member of the staff. He is a sophomore at East Stroudsburg State College. He will serve as camp life guard.

Jill Smith Gets Degree

NEWFOUNDLAND — Jill Madden Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude O. Smith, was awarded her Bachelor of Science in Elementary Education degree on Sunday during commencement exercises held in Centennial Gymnasium, Bloomsburg State College.

The local graduate received the coveted service key, a gold charm given for outstanding service to the college community.

Attending the program were Mr. and Mrs. Claude Smith, and also Jill's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Ray L. Smith, of LaAnna.

Miss Smith will become the bride of Robert Rochfort, of Sterling, at 2 p.m. on June 6 in the South Sterling Methodist Church.

PERFECT TIMING

FLINT, Mich. (AP) — George L. Bott needed to add two bedrooms to his home when he took on the responsibility of raising the five children of his only son, killed in an automobile accident. So he took out a home improvement loan from the Genesee Merchants Bank and Trust Co.

His $1,500 note was returned before any payments were made, marked "Paid in Full," the bank's way of celebrating an installment-loan record. It was Bott's loan that sent the total over the $100 million mark in just four years.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Krebs

Mary Kathryn Miller Is Bride Of John W. Krebs

East Stroudsburg —Announcement has been made of the marriage of Mary Kathryn Miller, daughter of Mrs. Anna Miller of 375 Lincoln Ave., East Stroudsburg, to John W. Krebs.

The groom is the son of Mrs. Ida Krebs of 342 Monroe St., East Stroudsburg.

The ceremony was performed in St. Matthew's Roman Catholic Church, East Stroudsburg, by Rev. Francis Barrett at 10 a.m., Saturday, April 18.

The skirts were tiered ruffles with sequins and pearls ending in a chapel length train. The headpiece was fashioned with pearls and a finger-length veil.

The best man was Daniel Jazenback. The ushers were Jack Fox and Lewis Holstead. The music for the wedding was played by Catherine Hannas.

A reception was held for 100 guests at the VFW home. The music for dancing was furnished by Robert Werkheiser and his band, "The Lonely Ones."

The bride is a graduate of East Stroudsburg Area Joint High School and is employed in the dietary office of the General Hospital of Monroe County.

The groom is employed in the Pocono Foundary. After a honeymoon to New York City, the couple took residence at Washington St. in East Stroudsburg.

Temple Sisters To Close Season At Tues. Meeting

Stroudsburg — The Temple Israel Sisterhood will hold a Dessert Meeting at 8 p. m. Tuesday in the Temple. It will be the last meeting of the season.

Mrs. Phyllis Brodsky, sisterhood president, requests all outgoing committee chairmen to bring their materials for transferring the chairmanships upon the incoming chairmen.

Members are requested to be prompt.

Bangor Man School Head In Pittsburgh

Pittsburgh — Dr. James W. Becker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Becker, Flicksville, has accepted the position of Director of Research for the city schools of Pittsburgh.

In addition, he also will teach in the graduate school at the University of Pittsburgh.

Dr. Becker is relinquishing his posts as Director of Elementary Education, Special Education and Research at Millersville State College in order to make this change, which will become effective in mid-July.

The former Bangorian, a 1945 graduate of Bangor High School, has been at Millersville since 1957. He previously was elementary principal of the Media Schools and prior to that was supervising principal at Forks Township.

He served 18 months with the U.S. Navy before matriculating at Kutztown State College, graduating in 1949. He received his M.A. from Lehigh University in 1952 and his Ed. D from Temple University in 1958. He also studied at Arizona State College in 1948.

Although raised in Bangor, Dr. Becker was born in Schuylkill Haven. He and his wife, the former Doris Gagnon of Stroudsburg, and two daughters, Karen Sue, 10, and Beth Ellen, 7, reside at 517 N. School House Lane, Lancaster.

At Millersville he also is a member of the Administrative Council, the Dean's Council and the Graduate Council.

Ceramist Gets Fired Up About Home Craftsmanship

By Roberta Fleming Raesch

If you want to start your own art business what are the things that you need most?

"A man to help with the packing and shipping — even if you have to marry him!" says artist Dorothy Larson of Washington, N.J., who's earning a reputation for herself as an outstanding craftsman in ceramics and fused stained glass.

Smiles All Around

Dorothy smiled at her own advice. And her husband smiled, too, since Dorothy's husband, Bruce Hotchkiss — a newspaperman and writer by trade — is the man whom Dorothy thinks of when it comes to packing, shipping and handling business details.

"As Dorothy's art business grew, I couldn't help helping her," Bruce said.

Actually, it was inevitable that Dorothy's business as an artist should grow.

Even in grade school she showed strong talent and in high school her interest and love for fine arts deepened. This continued through college and after college she studied both industrial design and pottery in New York.

Driving Desire

"When I started working, however, I jumped from one thing to another," Dorothy said. 'But finally, a desire to work in pottery and ceramics drove me to Greenwich Village where I began my own struggling, part-time business."

As Dorothy showed her pottery and ceramics in shops, her struggle — happily — began to decrease, and the demand for her work increased. Then, ten years ago, she and her husband bought a 1710 country house with lots of room for a studio and shop.

Artist Dorothy Larson Works With Ceramics, Fused Glass.

"At first, I stuck to the type of art work I'd always done," Dorothy explained. "But, about six years ago, a neighbor brought me scraps of colorful cathedral glass and suggested I try some fused glass work — an intricate, unpredictable medium in which colors and textures can't be charted in advance. I was intrigued immediately and made a paperweight as my first piece."

From that small beginning, Dorothy's talent and love for fused glass matured into such success that six years later, as part of her art business, she's now commissioned to do fused glass panels and murals for some of the country's best-known restaurants, showrooms, hotels and motels.

She's also asked by many business firms and retail shops to do other decorative items in either ceramics or glass. All of her orders come to her because people have seen her work or heard of her from someone else.

Other Necessities

"To succeed with your own business in art on either a large or small scale, you need to do several things — in addition to marrying a man to help with the packing and shipping," Dorothy said.

"Three of the most important are (1) to display your work at exhibits and shows; (2) to get your work into shops; and (3) accept the criticism you get until you become your own best critic."

Mrs. Bert Transue will be hostess to the club at her home in Mount Bethel on Thursday afternoon, June 4th.

Miss Geer PMJ Jr. Prom Queen

Swiftwater — Blue Hawaii was the theme of the annual prom of the junior class of Pocono Mountain Joint High School held recently in the high school gymnasium.

Miss Leslie Geer, voted the queen of the prom, was crowned by Lawrence Wile, school principal.

Under the direction of Adolph Caprioli, junior class advisor, and Bart Dunlap, art director, the class had decorated the gym and lobby with palm trees, "sandy" beaches, tropical backdrops, and a working volcano, which erupted at 11 o'clock to spew forth flowers.

Soft lights and the music of The Musical Knights from Allentown blended to create the illusions of the islands as the guests stepped from the gangplank of an imaginary ship onto the "beach" at the entrance of the gym, where "native" girls greeted them with the traditional leis and a kiss.

The festivities began with a turkey dinner served to the 300 students, faculty members and their guests.

C. Willis Dunlap, supervising principal, gave the opening remarks, and introduced Neil Polumbo, assistant principal, who in turn presented the candidates for the honors of queen.

Misses Dawn Adams, Alice Smith, Brenda McCune, Colleen Serfass, Leslie Geer, and Kathleen Kahr were presented.

Escorted by Terry Phillips, Miss Geer wore a floor length gown of blue with white French lace insertions. Her crown combined pink and white carnations with baby's breath.

Blue Hawaii, this year's prom, was the largest ever promoted by the Pocono Mountain High School, as the juniors treated the senior class to the dinner-dance which ended at 11:30 p.m.

A QUEEN — Lawrence Wile, principal of Pocono Mt. Joint High School, congratulates Leslie Geer, queen of junior prom.

Scranton-Pocono Scouts Hold Neighborhood Meet

Stroudsburg — The Scranton-Pocono girl scout leaders of District 5 held a final neighborhood meeting of the season on Thursday at the First Presbyterian Church of Stroudsburg.

Mrs. Roger D. Acker, neighborhood chairman, opened the meeting with the leaders repeating the girl scout promise and laws.

Miss Peggy Jean Davis, district advisor, taught two new songs, "Hola Hee-Hola Ha" and "Hey Ho Nobody's Home."

In the evaluation of the annual spring meeting at the girl scout house in Scranton, Mrs. Clarabell Sebring reported that it was one of the nicest and best planned meetings.

Mrs. Acker reported that the Juliette Low Ingathering was a success with just one troop not participating.

Mrs. Acker spoke about the Inter-Council Adult Conference to be held in the girl scout house in Scranton on October 20th-21st.

Mrs. Acker reminded the leaders to make sure they had their orders in for their troop badges, permission for camp trips and record reports.

Miss Davis had World Fair flyers for any of the leaders who were planning to visit the Fair as a troop.

Reorganization plans were reviewed by Miss Davis. More leaders will be needed in the fall when the scouts are moved up in rank.

THE WYCKOFF SHOPPER

Quilts and crafts. I like the sound of the phrase . . . don't you? And better still, I like the fact that while both quilts and crafts can be as up to the minute as the next breath you draw, both also awaken echoes of a time long gone. I can't think of quilts without thinking of our early settlers, utilizing every scrap of fabric for warmth . . . and the pioneer wife, reaching out for beauty by introducing attractive designs into her patching, so that a pattern, pleasing to the eye, might be enjoyed along with comfort.

Beginning today, we will observe "Quilts and Crafts Week" in our Keystone Room. We will have on display just a few quilts and perhaps some woven coverlets from the past, as well as a few others that are contemporary. During the week we will have quilters at work now and then. They will be interesting to watch, and will be happy to answer the questions of those who would enjoy quilting but haven't the remotest idea of how to begin. Monday evening, for instance, and again on Wednesday afternoon, the ladies of Grace Lutheran Church, East Stroudsburg, will be quilting. Thursday afternoon there will be a group from Zion Lutheran Church, Middle Smithfield. Friday night we will have quilters from the Assembly of God Church, Cresco, R. D. On Mondays and Friday evenings at 7:30 and again on Wednesday afternoon, Mrs. Wendell Wicks, whose "Quiet Valley Living Farm Museum" is one of the most interesting attractions in this area for all those who love and appreciate things historic, will demonstrate candle dipping, and discuss "The Romance of Lighting in Colonial Days".

Nor is that all! On Saturday we will feature some of the many fine craftsmen of this area . . . members of the Lehigh Valley Chapter of the Pennsylvania Guild of Craftsmen who have promised to set up demonstrations and exhibits in our Keystone Room. Among this distinguished group will be J. Carroll Tobias, who will demonstrate the making of custom-styled sterling silver jewelry; Mrs. Sue Renfro, whose specialty is Japanese wood carving and painting; Hampton E. Weil, who designs and makes unusual cookie cutters; Martha Hollabaugh, weaver; Liela Sloan, whose specialty is ceramics, Paul R. Wieand, maker of Pennsylvania Dutch block prints and Mrs. Elizabeth Hans, potter.

It should be fascinating, don't you agree? I know that just the other morning, I was a guest in the home of Mrs. W. S. McCain, of Shook Avenue (mother of Pat Williams, of The Daily Record) and over coffee had the pleasure of seeing at least a dozen quilts and quilt tops which she has completed within the past few years. Mrs. McCain quilts constantly. Many of her relatives, friends, and favorite charities have been enriched as a result. She has an artist's gift for mating colors, and adapting quilt patterns to her particular needs through using a dash of her own originality. I was fascinated by all her accomplishments, and only wish I too had the patience to cut and piece thousands of bits of brightly colored cloth into a work of art that will become a prized heritage through the years.

Marie Everett, who is the proud owner of one of Mrs. McCain's quilts, was telling me that her family always had a "sick quilt"—an especially prized quilt in which the youngsters were wrapped lovingly whenever they were ill. The quilt was so treasured it was almost an honor to become ill, and to be bundled up in it.

My Aunt Martha had a quilt upon which we would play guessing games. "I see red," I'd say, and she had three chances to pick out the right square . . . then I would guess which square held her attention. Quilts, crafts, and the comfort of treasured things . . . they are synonomous . . . and to be admired and appreciated.

Let's talk Fashion

Once in a blue moon along comes something that is really different in cotton dresses and we're delighted with the new Craig-Craley line. They're casual and yet with a touch of sophistication and a difference that will make them the stand-bys of your wardrobe for all your activities.

There are the short-sleeved cotton suits so perfect for going to the Fair, the dare-to-be different shifts for patio lounging, and the princess or waisted dresses for just everywhere and anywhere.

The distinguishing mark are the provincial prints, reminiscent of calico, paisley or mattress ticking, simple and yet sophisticated. You can get an idea from the full page ad of Craig and Craley fashions in the current Glamour magazine. But you can get a much better idea by coming in and seeing how they look on you.

Cy Barrett Says

Boss's Son's Woes

DEAR CY:

Through no fault of my own, I am the boss' son. Everyone treats me with courteous discredit but someday I hope to take over this ailing business. My father built it laboriously and has let it slide because of poor health. Do you know, Cy, of any boss' son who led a company to greater heights? I'd like to hear of just one who did.

BRYSON

DEAR BRYSON:

There are thousands of cases where boss' sons made good. Often they involve endeavors apart from those in which the founder planted his mark of individualism, like the Rockefellers. Sometimes in the same industry as per Henry Ford II.

Lloyd Bunting was handed the company by his father in 1954 and has shrewdly guided the family business to new accomplishments. Company stock was selling in the $13 range and earning $1.29 per share. Eight years later, Noxzema shares were priced around $80 and earnings per share had risen to $4.96.

How did Dr. Bunting's boy Lloyd do it? First, he sought out able experienced men. He then attracted them to his company through good salaries, bonuses and stock options. The team then switched Noxzema Skin Cream from a proprietary drug to a cosmetic and the 35-year-old product doubled its sales.

Next, Lloyd and his general staff launched Cover Girl. This cosmetic further took the company's products out of the medicine cabinet, where it was used seasonally, to the dressing table where it was smeared on daily. Working with the boss' son stoked up Noxzema vice president H. W. Grathwohl into exclaiming business opportunities are unlimited "as long as management can demonstrate people are still the most valuable asset on which to build a vigorous future."

CY

DEAR CY:

We are trying to pick a name for our photography business which sells pictures of travelers in distant places. Which would you choose: "Playgirl Book Store" or "Folies B. Bookstore?"

SPANGLER

DEAR SPANGLER:

I wouldn't necessarily choose a bookstore name if I was in the photography business. But a lot of those, selling obscene photographs, do. Considering the arrests, prosecutions, and convictions perpetrated by the U.S. postal department (376 last month), I suggest you decide which business you are in.

CY

DEAR CY:

It's the husband who spends money wildly in this family. I'm afraid to open my mouth about needing something, because he will be chuckling to himself, on his way to buy it, before I can stop him. A new refrigerator? A new car? Another TV set? Sure. Money's no object so long as there is credit. We have had some horrible fights over his spending and I say credit is the worst evil of these times. They should outlaw it for family purchases!

MRS. JEANS

DEAR MRS. JEANS:

There will always be flies in the ointment of family finance, but they don't condemn marriage or credit. Consumer credit has been a vital factor for the growth of this country and increased living standards. Last year, it showed an increase of 6 billion dollars, or 10 per cent over 1962. With technological changes making it possible to produce more, methods through which consumers can purchase more should be part of the picture. Consumer credit began when one man had confidence in another who in turn had faith in his future. I'm not sure what your husband has, unless it's the need for seeing a psychiatrist.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Monday, June 1, 1964

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Avoid the extremes of self-belittlement and undue aggression — both tempt. Business, domestic matters need care; stress direction and caution in all things.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Future gains for present-day striving and conscientious endeavor indicated. You may not feel as lively or enthused as usual, but steady, sure-footed moves will pay off.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Don't rest on past laurels now. So much good and so much progress is in store that it would be foolhardy to let down in effort.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Correct errors promptly; be eager and ready to take on tasks and "extras" that will eventually pay off. A day for repairing, redeeming, revitalizing.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — You may have to do something not anticipated, attend to more than is on your docket. Remain at ease, smooth, even casual about day's problems — but NOT careless.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — Remain your inborn philosophical self as you wade through heavy matters, complicated issues or just plain tasks. Time is very much on your side now.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — A good day for good work — and a good disposition. Don't break appointments without reason, nor jump to conclusions before full thought is given. A period for advancement.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Take care in counseling others, repeating information. Avoid argument as such, but discuss calmly important trends, transactions.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Face realities and correct deficiencies as officially as possible. Your talents and knowhow should make this easy — especially if enthusiasm backs the incentive.

December 23 to January 20 (Capricorn) — Study the elements necessary to his kind of endeavor in which you are engaged, and the workings of the minds involved in matters close to you. Don't expect shortcuts to do the job.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) — Your planetary influences are fine but, remember, some folks are under stress and will not have the opportunities you have. Aim to understand behavior patterns.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) — Persuade tactfully, be aware of intricacies if several people are concerned in your activities. Don't overlook your own intuitive faculties or what others have "worked out." Be patient in awaiting results.

YOU BORN TODAY are clever, adept, dexterous with your hands. Many musicians, singers, writers, statesmen, promotion experts and athletes have been Gemini - born. You are usually on the job with the right tools when expected; may finish in a blaze of glory projects others have considered unproductive; are inventive and imaginative. Avoid strain, impulsiveness, supersensitivity, extravagance. Keep learning, developing your talents. Birthdate of: Brigham Young, leader of Mormons.

French Ignore Memorial Of Normandy 20 Years Later

By Richard Spong
Editorial Research Reports

WASHINGTON — Saturday, June 6 is the 20th anniversary of D-Day for the Allied invasion of France in World War II.

Despite protestations to the contrary, the French indifference to the Normandy commemoration of the June 6, 1944 landings in France can scarcely be considered as anything but calculated.

General de Gaulle, whose memory of the World War II D-Day is bitter in any event, has the convenient excuse of wanting to keep his engagements to a minimum while recuperating from his recent operation.

But the explanation that Premier Georges Pompidou's "heavy schedule" does not permit his attendance is a trifle harder to swallow.

Indeed, France will be represented at the Normandy services only by the present Veterans Minister and his predecessor.

Moreover, French television audiences may be denied the 90-minute Columbia Broadcasting System's documentary, "D-Day Plus 20 Years: Eisenhower Returns to Normandy.'

The French government television representatives only recently, and tardily, asked to see an audition print.

Gen. Eisenhower himself reports in Crusade in Europe: "I personally liked Gen. de Gaulle, as I recognized in him many fine qualities.

We felt, however, that these qualities were marred by hypersensitiveness and an extraordinary stubborness in matters which appeared inconsequential to us."

Dour Cordell Hull, however, was much less generous. "During my period in office," the wartime Secretary of State wrote, "De Gaulle showed few signs of political acumen, being more likely than not to go off on tangents.

Desperately temperamental, he was withal keen and when he acted normally, he had excellent capacities."

On one occasion, Anthony Eden is reported to have informed De Gaulle of a British War Cabinet complaint that "we have ten times more trouble with the Committee of the Free French than with all the other Allies together."

De Gaulle replied: "I have always maintained that France was a very great country."

The anecdote perhaps throws light on the fundamental cleavage among the Allies.

In his memoirs, Gen. De Gaulle tells how, at the close of World War II, he rejected a proposal to proclaim the restoration of the Republic of France.

The Republic never ceased to exist, the General replied; he and the Free French and the Resistance had "incorporated" it.

Winston Churchill in a passage warmly praising the French leader recognizes that De Gaulle "found it to be essential to his position before the French people that he maintain a proud and haughty demeanor towards 'perfidious Albion,' though an exile dependent upon our protection and dwelling in our midst."

S-burg A's Still Unbeaten; Increase PMBL Lead To 2

STROUDSBURG — The Stroudsburg A's strengthened their first-place grip in the Pocono Mountain Baseball League over the holiday weekend, toppling the S-burg Poconos Saturday, 13-2, and nipping winless West End yesterday, 5-4.

The twin triumphs gave the A's a perfect 7-0 slate for the season while also increasing their league lead to two full games over second-place Kunkletown which gained only a split in its holiday fracases.

Saturday's results, in addition to the A's-Poconos game, were: Bowmanstown 8, Saylorsburg 5; Kunkletown 2, Reeders 0; Bushkill 7, West End 4. The other Sunday results were: Bushkill 8, Poconos 5; Reeders 7, Bowmanstown 1; Saylorsburg 6, Kunkletown 0.

Lose In 10th

The Poconos, crushed by the A's on Saturday, handed Bushkill five runs in the top of the first round yesterday but rallied to tie the count at 5-5 in the seventh.

But Bushkill came up with three markers in the top of the 10th to gain the nod.

The A's, meanwhile, combined strong pitching with powerful hitting to gain the holiday victories.

Harold Strunk went all the way for the A's to pick up Saturday's win against the Poconos, while receiving 12-hit support. Strunk yielded but five hits, struck out 10 and walked nine.

Fine Support

Tom Barrow received fine hitting support in yesterday's clash as the A's swatted a total of 10 hits against three West End pitchers. Barrow gave up eight hits, fanned 12 and walked but two.

But the finest pitching performance of the weekend was turned in by Dick Serfass of Saylorsburg who hurled a two-hitter against the hard-hitting Kunkletown nine. While his Laker teammates were banging out nine hits for a half dozen runs, Serfass fanned seven and didn't issue a walk.

The victory enabled the Lakers to climb into a fourth-place tie with Bushkill. Both teams sport identical 3-4 records.

Funeral For Eddie Sachs Wednesday In Bethlehem

BETHLEHEM, Pa. (AP)—Funeral services for Eddie Sachs, veteran race driver, killed Saturday in the Indianapolis 500 probably will be held Wednesday from the Downing funeral home here, it was reported Sunday night.

But a spokesman for the Downing funeral home said arrangements still must be firmed, and this likely won't be done until Monday morning when Sachs' body will arrive here by plane from Indianapolis.

Sachs is a native of Bethlehem but for the past couple years has lived in the suburbs of Detroit.

Glum Racers Share Prizes

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP)—Glum race drivers assembled Sunday to share in a record $500,000 jackpot, but the luster of racing's richest prize was dimmed by a pair of vacant chairs.

Missing from the annual Indianapolis 500 mile race victory dinner were veteran driver Eddie Sachs, 37, Detroit, and a promising rookie just up from the sports car ranks, Dave MacDonald, 26, El Monte, Calif., who were killed in Saturday's fiery second lap crash.

Winner A. J. Foyt was expected to take home a record purse of nearly $200,000, including $22,000 in lap money or $150 for each lap he led.

Smile Vanishes

When Foyt pulled into victory lane Saturday, someone in the crowd thrust a newspaper into his hands.

The smile on Foyt's face vanished. "I hate to lose two buddies like Eddie Sachs and Dave MacDonald," he said. "Sachs was probably one of the most colorful drivers in the world and MacDonald was a fine guy."

The fatal crash occurred before the second lap was completed and while the 48th running of the speed classic was less than two minutes old.

Geyser Of Flame

MacDonald's car had bumped into a wall coming out of a turn and skidded across the start of the main straightaway in a geyser of flame. Sachs drove into the inferno and burned to death in his cockpit.

MacDonald died a short time later in a hospital.

In all, seven cars were involved in the pile-up and four other drivers were injured, none of them seriously.

It took 1¾ hours to get the race restarted, the first time in history it had been stopped for an accident.

No Major Changes

Only 12 cars were on the track when Foyt won. No major changes were made Sunday in the official order of finishers, although only five cars actually completed the 200 laps. Those running at the end were flagged off and the rest had left the race for various mechanical reasons.

Foyt's official average speed of 147.350 miles per hour was a record, eclipsing the 143.137 set last year by winner Parnelli Jones.

First National Wins LL Game

STROUDSBURG — First National Bank scored a 5-0 victory over Monroe Security Trust over the weekend behind the one-hit pitching of D. Marsh.

Marsh, who struck out eight batters and walked seven, hurled the route for the winners who scored four runs in the fourth and added another in the fifth.

Villanova: Fifth Straight IC4A Track-Field Title

By BOB GREEN

VILLANOVA, Pa. (AP)— A double dunking, some psychological warfare and a surprising sophomore were key factors in Villanova's fifth straight IC4A track and field championship.

Durable Vic Zwolak, who pulled off the toughest double in the 88-year history of the event, got the dunking, Rolando Cruz was the successful practioner of the psychological bit and the sophomore sprinter is Earl Horner, who could be the seal on the Wildcats' continuing dynasty.

Between them they provided 24 of Villanova's 45 points and two of the four meet records in the windup of the nation's oldest collegiate track fixture Saturday.

Breaks Own Record

Cruz scaled 16 feet, 3½ inchs in the pole vault, breaking his own meet record and turning back the challenge of La Salle's John Uelses, the original 16-footer who cleared 16-¾.

Cruz' triumph in the final event on the program climaxed a week of psychological maneuvering with Uelses.

The maneuvering started with Uelses' public prediction that he would win the event and, incidentally, failing to mention Cruz in his list of top candidates for the U.S. Olympic pole vault squad.

It continued when Uelses suggested Saturday the pole vault box was of illegal size—it was—and asked that it be changed—it was not. Then the two could not agree on the next height after both had gone 16-¾. Uelses asked for 16-5, Cruz for 16-3 and they compromised.

The Last Word

But Cruz had the last word when Uelses failed three times at 16-3½.

Zwolak, 25-year-old former Marine, won the three-mile run in a meet record 13:53 flat then, just 33 minutes later, came back with a 9:25.7 in the demanding 3,000 meter steeplechase.

He took his first dunking when he fell at the first of seven water jumps and his second when—with the meet title sewed up—his teammates tossed him in again.

Horner won the 220 in a creditable 20.9 and was second in a photo finish 9.7 100 to Colgate's Sam Amukun, a Ugandan.

"I thought I won it," Horner said, "I thought so, too," Amukun said. The photo timer, however, showed them hitting the wire together, Horner with his head and Amukun with his chest. The judges decided on the chest.

Harvard was second in the 51-team field with 26½ points, followed by Morgan State with 20, Penn State and Yale 16 each and Manhattan with 15.

Wall Ties For 2nd

Speedway Open Goes To Player

By JERRY LISKA

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—South Africa's Gary Player birdied the closing hole for a final-round four-under par 67 capturing the $12,000 top prize in the $70,000 Speedway Open Golf Tourney Sunday.

Player, sporting an all-white costume instead of his traditional black, boomed his second shot 20 feet from the pin on the par five 18th, lagged to within eight inches, and dropped the birdie putt to win by one stroke with a total of 273, 11 strokes under par for the tourney.

Player finished in the last threesome after Doug Sanders blazed a 64 and Art Wall carded 67 to deadlock at 274.

Player, whose only previous 1964 victory was in the Pensacola Open in March, birdied three of the final four holes in his closing charge.

George Bayer, the 6-foot-5 giant who had led at the halfway mark Friday with a eight-under-par 205, wound up fourth with a closing 70 which gave him a 275 total.

Next tied at 276 were Cligg Brown, a Negro rookie on the PGA tour, Don Whitt and Billy Casper, who won the 1962 Speedway Open with a tournament record 264.

Wall, who started out six under par, blew a chance to take the $12,000 first money when he missed a 10-inch putt for a bogey four on the 133-yard 16th, and three-putted for a par five on the 18th, lipping the cup from three feet on a potential birdie putt.

Leading PGA money winner Jack Nicklaus, who sharply criticized the tourney Friday as a sideshow to the big auto race, wound up in a nine-way tie for 18th place at 280 as he closed with a par 71.

Barber Clips Angels

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Steve Barber, a 20-game winner last year, pitched three-hit ball for seven innings Sunday and scored his first victory of the season as Baltimore nipped the Los Angeles Angels 2-1.

It was the sixth victory for the Orioles in seven meetings with Los Angeles this year and the 15th loss for the Angels in their last 19 games.

The Orioles got 10 hits off Bo Belinsky in eight innings, but needed a balk to beat the Angel left-hander.

With the score tied 1-1, Bob Saverine and Luis Aparicio opened the Baltimore third with singles. Saverine was forced at third base, but Aparicio took third on Belinsky's balk and scored the deciding run on a force play at second.

The Orioles have played 16 one-run games this year and won all but one.

Barber, out 23 days earlier in the season because of a pulled back muscle, struck out four and walked one. He left in the eighth for a pinch hitter.

Central Catholic Wins Track Title

READING, Pa. (AP) — Pittsburgh Central Catholic captured the Class A Division of the 20th annual Pennsylvania Catholic Interscholastic Athletic Association track and field meet Sunday by scoring 54 points.

Father Judge of Philadelphia took second with 46½ points while Bishop McDevitt of Wyncote was third with 43. Monsignor Bonner of Philadelphia was fourth with 18 and Philadelphia

Giants Win A Marathon

NEW YORK (AP)—Pinch hitter Del Crandall, batting .191, smashed a two-out ground rule double to right field, scoring Jim Davenport with the tie-breaking run in the 23rd inning and sparking the San Francisco Giants to an 8-6 victory over the New York Mets Sunday in the longest game played in major league history on a time basis.

Davenport tripled to the right field corner off Galen Cisco after Cisco retired the first two batters. Cisco walked Cap Peterson intentionally before Crandall batted for relief hurler Gaylord Perry and hit a 1-2 pitch to right. Peterson went to third on the hit.

J. Alou then hit an infield dribbler that scored Peterson. Willie Mays ended the inning by forcing Alou at second.

Retired In Order

Bob Hendley pitched the 23rd for the Giants and retired the Mets in order.

The game was the second of a doubleheader that consumed 10 hours and 16 minutes. The Giants won the opener 5-3 before 57,037, largest crowd in the majors this season.

The time of the game—seven hours and 22 minutes—eclipsed the old mark of seven hours set by New York and Detroit in a 22-inning American League game June 24, 1962.

Only three other games went more innings. The teams, however, set a major league mark for innings played in one day—32. The previous high was 29 played by Boston and Philadelphia in the American League July 4, 1905. The game also is the longest played in the majors this season.

Other Highlights

There were other highlights. The Giants played the game under protest and the Mets executed a triple play among other things.

Manager Al Dark announced in the 15th inning the Giants were playing under protest because plate Umpire Ed Sudol refused to check with the first base umpire when the Mets' Chris Cannizzaro walked on a 3-2 pitch.

Dark contended Cannizzaro had swung at the pitch and had not checked his swing in time as Sudol ruled. Dark was ejected from the game during the argument.

The triple play, second of the season in the majors, came in the 14th after Jesus Alou singled off Larry Bearnarth and Mays walked. Orlando Cepeda, who had rapped six hits in 10 previous at bats in the doubleheader, lined a smash to shortstop Roy McMillan who grabbed the ball, stepped on second to get Alou and threw to Ed Kranepool, catching Mays.

Largest Crowd

The crowd also was the largest in the short history of Shea Stadium. The Giants and the Mets drew 150,571 for the three-day, four-game series.

Perry pitched 10 innings for the Giants, scattering seven hits, walking one and striking out nine. The victory was his third against one loss.

Cisco hurled nine innings and had limited the Giants to two hits before they struck in the 23rd. He walked two and struck out five as he lost his fifth game in seven decisions.

Until they scored in the 23rd, the Giants hadn't scored for 19 innings, or since the third when they scored four runs.

Dodgers Trim Pirates

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Tommy Davis singled in Jim Gilliam with the tie-breaking run in the eighth inning as Los Angeles defeated Pittsburgh 6-4 Sunday for the third straight time.

Willie Davis added an insurance run in the same inning, scoring from third after Willie Stargell threw the ball into the stands behind home on Ron Fairly's fly.

Roberto Clemente's lead - off homer off Sandy Koufax in the Pittsburgh third inning had knotted the game at 4-4.

The Pirates went ahead 3-0 in the first on Gene Freese's three run double.

WANTED!
MEN - WOMEN

from ages 18 and over. Prepare now for U. S. Civil Service Job openings in this area during the next 12 months.

Government positions pay high starting salaries. They provide much greater security than private employment and excellent opportunity for advancement. Many positions require little or no specialized education or experience.

But to get one of these jobs, you must pass a test. The competition is keen and in some cases only one out of five pass.

Lincoln Service helps thousands prepare for these tests every year. It is one of the largest and oldest privately owned schools of its kind and is not connected with the Government.

For FREE information on Government jobs, including list of positions and salaries, fill out coupon and mail at once—TODAY. You will also get full details on how you can prepare yourself for these tests.

Stroud Union Meets Bethlehem Tuesday

By KEN O'BRIEN
Daily Record Sports Editor

COOPERSBURG — This is a stale story because of a holiday followed by another non-publication day—Sunday.

But the no-hitter by Freddy Frantz and the awesome power of Stroud Union's batsmen which enabled the Mountaineers to gain an overwhelming 14-0 win over Southern Lehigh last Friday is still fresh in the minds of their followers.

The victory kept Stroud Union "alive" in the District 11 baseball playoffs. And it served warning upon its next opponent—Bethlehem. These two clubs meet tomorrow in the continuation of the districts at 4 p.m. at Bethlehem.

Second No-Hitter

Frantz, a central figure in a court controversy over whether he should be allowed to play because of his marriage, hurled the second no-hitter of his scholastic career. The first one came against East Stroudsburg last year.

But this one was the dessert. This one had more cream. This was the opening of the district playoffs. It meant more.

And the Stroud Union power was another thing. It gave Freddy an easy win. As one galleryite remarked during the game: "These guys hit like Yankees. It's incredible.

They did hit like Yankees, too —except when Sandy Koufax is pitching.

The Mountaineers clubbed a total of 14 hits which included a home run, three triples and two doubles.

David Homers

Les David, batting No. 8 in the order, slammed the only homer of the game in the second inning to deep center which scored John Muller who had tripled ahead of him.

The Mountaineers stroked a total of seven hits for seven runs in that frame to seal the verdict early. A total of 13 batters went to the plate in that round. In addition to David's homer, Muller tripled and doubled in both trips. Dave Pierson, Frantz, Glenn Bisbing and Paul Albert all hit singles to give Frantz a much bigger cushion then he needed.

Frantz, who walked only two, struck out a total of 13 en route to the victory.

Stroud Union pecked away for two more runs in the fourth and then poured across five more in the top of the seventh when the team batted around again. Bisbing and Thurston hit back-to-back triples in that frame while Raymond Bago chipped in with a single.

Allen, Amaro HRs Win For Phillies

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Two-run homers by Richie Allen and Ruben Amaro were enough to overcome Art Mahaffey's pitching wildness Sunday as Philadelphia defeated Houston 4-1.

Mahaffey, who allowed only three hits in gaining his fourth victory in six decisions, walked seven, including three in the seventh when Ed Roebuck came to his relief.

Allen slammed his 10th homer into the left field stands in the first after a single by Cookie Rojas who hiked his average to .536. Amaro's first homer of the season followed John Herrnstein's triple that opened the fourth.

Loser Jim Owens, 1-4, gave up both blows before retiring for a pinch hitter in the seventh.

The Colts left two men on in the fourth after a pair of walks and a wild pitch. In the sixth, Nellie Fox opened with a single, advanced to second when Johnny Callison dropped Walt Bond's fly and went to third as Mike White beat out a bunt. Two infield flies stranded the runners.

In the seventh, after fanning John Bateman, Mahaffey loaded the bases. Roebuck came in, let pinch runner Steve Hertz score on an infield hit by Al Spangler, then threw out two men at the plate on taps to the mound.

Red Sox Edge Minnesota, 4-3

ST. PAUL - MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Felix Mantilla's pinch double drove in Frank Malzone in the ninth inning, giving Boston a 4-3 victory over Minnesota Sunday.

Malzone opened the inning with a single, was sacrificed to second and scored after Russ Nixon was passed intentionally.

The Red Sox had tied the game 3-3 in the seventh as Lou Clinton singled, went to second on a fly out and came home on Dalton Jones' single.

John Goryl's triple and a sacrifice fly by Lee Stange gave the Twins their first run in the third. They went ahead 3-2 in the sixth as Zoilo Versalles and Tony Oliva doubled, Don Mincher singled and Earl Battey lofted a sacrifice fly.

Chisox Win Pair

DETROIT (AP) — Home runs by Don Buford and Ron Hansen helped left-hander Gary Peters gain his sixth victory as Chicago defeated the Detroit Tigers 8-3 in the second game of a doubleheader Sunday. The White Sox won the opener 5-3 and swept the four-game weekend series.

Buford's fifth-inning homer off Detroit starter and loser Ed Rakow followed singles by Peters and Mike Hershberger. Hansen's two-run homer came in the eighth off Larry Sherry.

George Thomas and Norm Cash hit back-to-back homers in the seventh inning for Detroit.

Chicago got its first two runs in the second on Tom McCraw's bases-loaded single.

Paces Attack

Hershberger had a pair of singles and a double in the first game to pace the White Sox eight-hit attack. His ninth - inning single scored J. C. Martin with an insurance run.

Don Mossi blanked his former teammates for three innings, and Hoyt Wilhelm hurled the ninth as they preserved the victory.

Pete Ward of Chicago hit his third home run in as many games in the second inning.

Dick McAuliffe banged a two-run homer in the bottom of the second, giving the Tigers a brief lead.

Cubs Trim Braves On Williams' HR

CHICAGO (AP) — Billy Williams' 10th inning home run gave the Chicago Cubs a 4-3 uphill struggle over the Milwaukee Braves Sunday.

Williams' hit was his third in five official at bats and boosted his major league-leading average to .414. It was his 13th homer of the season.

The Cubs tied it in the ninth on rookie Billy Cowan's run-scoring single with two out.

Hank Aaron's tie-breaking double in the sixth inning following a disputed play at second base had given the Braves a 3-2 lead.

With the score tied 2-2 and a man on first, Woody Woodward bounced into what was believed to be an inning-ending double play. Umpire Jocko Conlan, however, ruled second baseman Jimmy Stewart failed to touch the base to force Denis Menke.

Paradise Tops Tannersville

TANNERSVILLE — Paradise Community Center scored a 6-2 victory over Tannersville in holiday action of the Pocono Mountain Babe Ruth League.

The losers outhit the Paradise club by an 11-10 margin but Tannersville was only able to score single runs in the first and fifth frames.

Paradise scored a pair of runs in each of the fourth, sixth and seventh rounds.

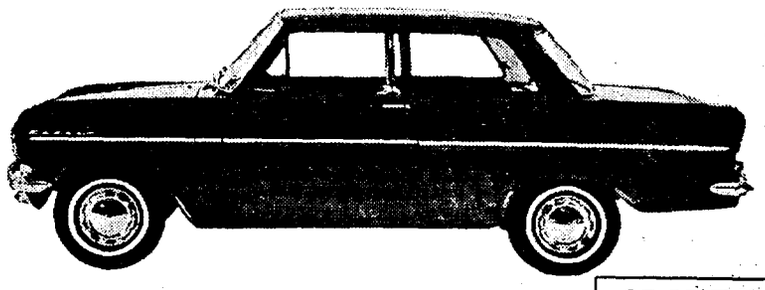
ANNOUNCING...
the new 1964 Opel Kadetts

One look will surprise you . . . one drive will convince you! And talk about value: look what you get in each and every Opel Kadett—fully synchronized 4-speed floor-mounted transmission, front all-vinyl bucket seats (standard on all models), seat belts, heater, electric windshield wipers and washers, also standard on all models. Open Kadetts also have the engine in the front and a large trunk. And a 24,000-mile/24-month warranty.*

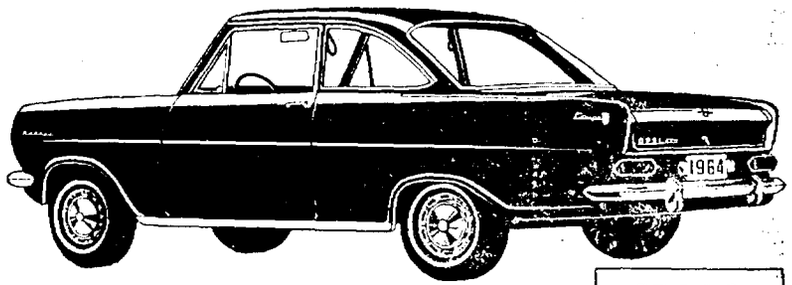


This is the Opel Kadett 2-Door Sedan.
It has an engine that delivers 46 h.p.
It has a chassis that doesn't require lubrication.
It has a General Motors 24,000-mile/24-month warranty.*
$1675.00 DELIVERED

This is the Opel Kadett Sunroof Sedan.
It's really the 2-door sedan with a little more fun built into it.
It costs a few dollars more. But not much.
$1761.40 DELIVERED

This is the Opel Kadett Station Wagon
A bus it isn't!

It doesn't look like a bus. It doesn't drive like one . . . or cost like one! It doesn't even cost like a wagon! The clever back door swings up and you're looking into 50 cu. ft. of cargo space. What won't go inside goes on top. Open wagons come with a luggage rack! And seat belts. And doors that make that good solid General Motors "thunk"!



$1838 DELIVERED

This is the Opel Kadett Sport Coupe

The car is little, to be sure, but what it lacks in size it makes up in spunk and style. Remember, Napoleon wasn't very big either, and look where he went! This one is a great little sport!

You are cordially invited to see the new Open Kadetts at

Pen Argyl Mayor Lauds Council's Work

By JIM SHAFER
Slate Belt-West End Reporter

PEN ARGYL — "Councilmen presently on council make my job as mayor a pretty easy one. They are very coperative. I've never had an angry word with one of them," Christie Snyder, mayor of Pen Argyl said recently.

"From what I've seen of the workings of council, the councilmen work pretty much like a team. All of them are property owners and I believe when they take action on an issue they look for two things," Mayor Snyder said.

"First, for the betterment of the community. Secondly, how it will affect property owners in the borough. They do not vote along party lines and I believe this is good. However, don't get the impression that council is without its difference of opinions—they have them but they take time to talk them out," he added.

Snyder, as mayor, does not have a vote but can speak and give his opinion or advice on matters. He said, "I do work with all the committees and help them where I can. The only department that is mine, so to speak, is the Police Department.

"I feel that Pen Argyl has a department that is second to none. It is efficient. We have letters on file received from people who were traveling through the area and for some reason or another needed some aid.

"These letters praise our policemen for the work and the helping hand they extended when a person in need asked for help.

"Recently we have added a new man to the force and this summer when Weona Park is open we will employ another man to watch the children as they cross the highway at the park."

Mayor Snyder is constantly looking for a way to make things safer. He along with council are ready to install a traffic light at the corner of Pennsylvania Ave. and E. Main St.—Dietrick's Corner.

"We have made our preliminary survey," he said, "now all we need is the approval from the state highway people in Allentown. They have our reports and they have their own. I believe it will only be a week or two before we hear from them."

Snyder favors the work done on the construction of a sewage system. He feels that the members of council at that time were very wise in installing the system.

Looking to the future, he said, "I am very much in favor of having an industrial arm in the community. An organization that would have the time to seek out industry and get it to locate here in the borough.

"We don't have too much to offer the young blood of the community. Most of them, if they want a good paying job, must leave the area. This is not good for any community. A town, such as ours, needs new young blood to enter into civil affairs and the many other avenues of life in a community. Without it the town can become a residential community or a ghost town."

He added, "One of the places to watch this year will be the park (Weona Park). We have a new park manager this year and I think he will be an asset to it and the community.

"Elwood Male is the new manager and from what I've been told he plans to erect fences to add to the beauty of the park.

This is just one of the ways he will add to the park and give the people of Pen Argyl additional benefits.

In Lieu Aid Unconstitutional

HARRISBURG (AP) — Atty. Gen. Walter E. Alessandroni said recently that a House bill to make payments to municipalities in lieu of taxes on state-owned buildings is in violation of the state Constitution.

The Justice Department issued the opinion at the request of Sen. Stanley Stroup, R-Bedford, chairman of the Senate Local Government Committee.

House bill 129, which would appropriate $1.5 million to make the tax-loss payments, was sent to Stroup's committee after passing the House by a vote of 116-64 on May 13.

Alessandroni contended the bill is improper because the legislature is limited by the Constitution to consideration of appropriations bills in even-numbered years.

He further stated that the bill, although it makes an appropriation, actually would change the law.

Barrett Resident 1st Econo-Miser At Army Depot

TOBYHANNA—An employee who began his Federal civil service less than three years ago is Tobyhanna Army Depot's first Econo-Miser of the Month. He is George Komenko of Mountainhome, an electronic equipment repairer in the Radio Shop.

His suggestion to fabricate a metal template to simplify the drilling of holes in the terminal board cases of a number of radio sets undergoing repair was estimated to save $1144 yearly. His award of $60, an award greater than anyone else received at the depot for a beneficial suggestion in May.

In addition to his cash award, Komenko's portrait was spotlighted for one week in the Administration building, after which time it was presented to him in a special ceremony by Commanding Officer Col. M. J. Reichel.

It was Komenko's first adopted suggestion. Two other ideas he submitted previously were rejected. "It pays to keep trying," he commented.

Trained On Farm

Komenko credits his perseverance to his early training on a farm. He was born in Panther, about 10 miles from Tobyhanna, where his parents owned 55 acres on which "there was always something to do."

One of his chores was to milk 15 cows a day. "You have to have patience for that," he says.

Milking cows also gave him nimble fingers, which he claims has helped him in his electronic repair work.

After graduating from the Greene-Dreher High School in Newfoundland, in 1945, Komenko served briefly with the Army Signal Corps.

Post-Army jobs took him to New York City, where he met his wife, the former Elizabeth Forestieri. They have a son, Stephen, age nine.

Like many others before him, Komenko has discovered that the Army Suggestion Program is a good way to earn extra cash. He used his award money to make the first monthly payment on a new car.

PV High Dinner June 4

SAYLORSBURG—An annual award dinner for all students who participated in sports this year will be held in the Pleasant Valley Joint High School cafeteria June 4.

Reservations must be made today at the latest.

The Booster Club of Pleasant Valley Joint High School met recently and made plans for a block dance to be held in the school parking lot.

Music will be provided by the Serenaders, and plans were made for a penny supper. Edward Arnold presided.

Blatt Spent $51,000 In Fight

HARRISBURG (AP) — The primary campaign committee of Genevieve Blatt reported Thursday that it spent $51,834 in her unresolved candidacy for the Democratic nomination to the U.S. Senate.

Figures filed with the State Elections Bureau listed contributions of $18,404, indicating a small deficit.

Major contributors to her senatorial primary campaign were the National Committee for an Effective Congress $1,200, and U.S. Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa.; J. W. Gitt, York publisher; L. C. Smith, Mrs. L. C. M. Smith, and Council For A Livable World, $1,000 each.

Knepp, Officer In Alumni Unit

HUNTINGDON, Pa. — Thomas H. Knepp, Stroudsburg high school science teacher, has been elected first vice-president of Juniata College's alumni association.

Knepp, a graduate of Juniata in 1939, will succeed Charles C. Ellis, assistant comptroller of Philco Corp., as president next year.

Pair Jailed For Poor Conduct

EAST STROUDSBURG — Two area women were committed to Monroe County Jail for 30 days in default of fine and costs over the weekend on charges of disorderly conduct.

Shirley LaBar, 20, of 12 Day St., East Stroudsburg and Florence Wolbert, 22, of Mountainhome were arrested at 1 a.m. Saturday, according to East Stroudsburg police.

LaBar and Wolbert pleaded not guilty, but were found guilty at a hearing before East Stroudsburg Justice of the Peace Harold Larison Sr. on Saturday.

MILLION-DOLLAR JAGUAR— NOT FOR SALE!

At the time Rome fell, another city, another great civilization was rising—half way around the world.

The center of the first Mayan Empire, Chichen Itza, lifted its great pyramids above the forests of the Yucatan Peninsula on the east coast of Mexico in the fifth century, A.D.

Deep within the largest pyramid is a chamber dominated by a throne in the shape of a red jaguar, spotted with inserts of green jade. The Mexican government refused $1,000,000 for it 30 years ago!

Far to the north stand the remains of another ancient city, Teotihuacan, which housed 250,000 people in 700 A.D.

And only 35 miles from there is a modern capital of today's world—Mexico City. Here, the tall buildings are examples of the best in modern architecture. Commerce and industry, theater and the arts, education and medicine, people and customs—all are of today's world.
